Macmillan English Grammar
In Context Essential with key Introduction

This book is designed to teach and revise grammar points at the level of Council of Europe Framework (CEF) A1, A2 and includes some B1 grammar.

The practice material includes a wide range of topics to reflect both everyday language use and the kinds of subjects learners might be studying in schools or colleges. Many learners are likely to use English to learn another subject during their education and the choice of text tries to reflect this fact. Some texts contain information which learners should find interesting or challenging. The intention in general is that language should have a familiar context and that learners should have something to use language for.

Within each unit, exercises range in difficulty. This allows learners to build up their confidence with the simpler, more familiar tasks before moving onto the more challenging ones later in the unit. The longer, topic-based texts include highlighted words whose definitions can be found on the accompanying CD-ROM. This is a good opportunity for learners to widen their vocabulary and see grammar used in realistic contexts.

The Review section at the back of the book offers more activities for students who have finished the other exercises. It is also for students who feel that they haven’t fully grasped the grammar point and need some further practice. In addition, it can be used as a means of testing or revising previous study, either in class or at home.

The CD-ROM
This includes two further exercises for each unit in this book, and a test section.

Plus, where you see highlighted words like this, you will find the definitions in the glossary section. Just follow the link from the homepage.

To the student

Macmillan English Grammar In Context has been written to make grammar more interesting than other books on the market. We hope you find it enjoyable as well as useful. If you are studying at home, the units can be covered in any order but the exercises within each unit have been graded. If you find some exercises difficult, read the presentation page again. The extension activities and Review offer the opportunity of further practice.

To the teacher

Unlike many other grammar books, Macmillan English Grammar In Context puts grammar into context. The aim is to encourage students to see grammar used more realistically and in more interesting ways. The topics covered in the exercises can be used as a starting point for a lesson, as a subject for discussion, and as a means of helping to build students’ vocabulary in useful areas. There is opportunity for individual study, group work and homework, plus testing, in the different sections of the book.

spelling rules for he, she and it

Most verbs: add -s.
Verbs ending in -s, -sh, -ch: add -es.
Verbs ending in a consonant followed by -y: change the -y to -ie.
Verbs such as do, go, have and be are irregular.

USE

time expressions

We often use the present simple with always, never, often, sometimes and usually. These are called adverbs of frequency and normally go before the main verb.

I always watch TV after school.
Sue usually has cereal for breakfast.
She often arrives late for college.
They sometimes have a match on Friday.
They don’t often forget their homework.
We never give customers a refund.

The verb to be is an exception. Adverbs of frequency go after the verb to be.

I am always at school before 08.00.
Sue is usually quite difficult.
Maths is sometimes quite difficult.

Always and usually are slightly different. They express how often something happens, but only at a particular time, and not in a general way. Compare the sentences below.

He sometimes plays tennis. ✓
He always plays tennis. x
He always plays tennis after work. ✓

We often go to the cinema. ✓
We usually go to the cinema. x
We usually go to the cinema on Saturdays. ✓

He / She / It  does not (doesn’t)  work. (not works)

I don’t understand this.

Argon is an inert gas; it doesn’t react with anything.

We use do / does + subject + bare infinitive in present simple questions.

Do  I / you / we / they  work?

Does  he / she / it  work? (not works?)

We also use do / does and do not / does not in short answers.

Yes,  I / you / we / they  do.

No,  I / you / we / they  do not (don’t).

he / she / it  does.

Do girls study more than boys?  Yes, they do. I No, they don’t.

Does your school provide lunch?  Yes, it does. I No, it doesn’t.

USE

We use present simple questions to ask about

- facts.  Does water contain hydrogen and oxygen?  Yes, it does.

- habits or routines.  Do you usually go to bed at eleven o’clock?  No, I don’t.

Negatives are used in the same way.

The Sun doesn’t travel round the Earth. The Earth travels round the Sun. I don’t usually play computer games during the week.

Are girls better students than boys?

Most people think that girls are better students than boys. In England, girls a score higher marks in tests in most subjects and at most ages. At the age of seven, 88% of girls reach the expected level for their age, but only 80% of boys do. By the age of 11, the difference is 80% to 69%, and the gap is wider at 14 years old. A similar situation exists in the USA and many other countries.

However, two American researchers, William Draves and Julie Coates, believe that it is not the boys who are the problem, but the schools. Their book, Nine Shift: Work, life, and education in the 21st century explain that in fact boys are better prepared for the future. Boys are more interested in computers and the Internet. They like taking risks, and thinking about ways of making money and teamwork – things that are important for success at work.

The problem is that schools punish boys for this behaviour because they are bad at listening and following instructions.

USE

We use the present continuous to talk about:

- things happening now.
  - Where’s John? In his room. He’s doing his homework.
  - You’re speaking too fast for me.

- temporary activities.
  - We’re learning about trees this week.
  - My brother is staying with friends in London until he finds somewhere to live.

- situations of change.
  - The hole in the ozone layer is getting bigger. The number of pupils in the school is falling.

- future arrangements.
  - We’re flying to Spain on a school trip next month. I’m seeing the head teacher after class.

present continuous or present simple?

- It rains a lot in Scotland. (habitual situation)
  - Put on an anorak. It’s raining. (now)
- Scientists do experiments to test their theories. (always true)
  - Scientists are doing experiments to see if there is life on Mars. (currently)
- She speaks French and German. (She can speak these languages.)
  - Wait a minute, she’s speaking to someone on her mobile. (now)

We do not usually use these verbs in the present continuous: believe, like, hate, prefer, want, depend, love, know, remember, forget, mean, need and understand.

- She doesn’t understand the formula. NOT She isn’t understanding this formula.
- Excuse me, what does this mean? NOT What is this meaning?

USE

We use present continuous questions to ask about

- things happening now.
  - Are you going to the cinema? What are your parents doing?
- temporary activities.
  - What are you studying in class now? Are you staying in a hotel?
- situations of change.
  - Is the weather in your country getting hotter? Are people living longer?
- future arrangements.
  - Are you going to the party on Friday? Are we having a test next lesson?

We use the negative form of present continuous in the same ways.

- I'm not listening to music, I'm playing a computer game.
- She's not staying in a hotel, she's staying with a friend.
- Computers aren't getting more expensive, they're getting cheaper.
- We're not going to the party on Friday.
1 What is John doing now? Look at the information and use the prompts to write present continuous sentences.

- 07.03 / John / get up
  It's 7.03 and John is getting up.
- 07.10 / he / shower
- 07.35 / he / have / breakfast
- 08.00 / John / go / school
- 09.15 / John and his friends / sit / in class
- 12.45 / he and his friends / have / lunch
- 16.10 / he / play / football
- 22.45 / he / sleep

2 Now write negative sentences using the prompts.

- 07.05 / he / sleep
  It's 07.05. He isn't sleeping.
- 08.45 / he / go to school
- 10.00 / John and his friends / do / their homework
- 12.35 / he / have / breakfast
- 15.00 / his team / playing football
- 18.45 / he / have / lunch
- 20.00 / he / watch / TV
- 23.00 / he / do / homework
3 Use the prompts to make a question. Then write a short answer.

a 07.05 / John / having breakfast?
   It's 07.05. Is John having breakfast? No, he isn't.

b 08.00 / he / go to school?

c 09.30 / he / sit / class?

d 12.00 / John and his friends / play / football?

g. Are longer are we living.

6. Complete the text with the present continuous form of the verbs in the box.

- get
- increase
- cause
- change
- melt
- rise
- have

Global warming

Power stations, cars and factories produce carbon dioxide (CO₂). Trees and plants change it back to oxygen, but we are cutting down trees in the Amazon rainforests, so the amount of carbon dioxide in the air is being increased.

The carbon dioxide allows radiation from the sun to enter the atmosphere but not to leave it. This causes the atmosphere to heat up.

Scientists think that the polar ice caps and glaciers around the world are melting, which is creating more water and the level of the sea is rising. In many parts of the world there is a possibility of floods on land near the coast. In general, the world's climate is changing. This means warm areas are getting colder winters, and previously cold areas are getting warmer.

Spelling rules
Most verbs: add -ed.
Verbs ending in -e: add -d.
Verbs ending in a consonant followed by -y: change the -y to -ied.
Verbs ending in a single vowel followed by a single consonant: double the consonant and add -ed.

- wish → wished
- date → dated
- carry → carried
- fill → filled
- close → closed
- study → studied
- fit → fitted
- tap → tapped

Irregular verbs
Many common verbs have irregular past forms.

- go → went
- have → had
- take → took

<table>

The verb to be has two past simple forms.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>I / He / She / It</th>
<th>was at school yesterday.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>You / We / They</td>
<td>were</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

See the List of irregular verbs on page 207.

Use
We use the past simple to talk about finished states, events and actions in the past.

Last year we studied the lives of the ancient Greeks in History. Then in the summer we visited Athens and saw the Acropolis. It was very interesting.

Neil Armstrong was the first man to land on the moon. On July 20, 1969, he walked on the surface of the moon for two and a half hours.
1 Read the sentences and underline all the examples of the past simple.

a I usually go to school by bus but today I walked.
b I liked the film, it was so exciting!
c He went shopping yesterday.
d They stayed at home at the weekend because they were ill.
e I don’t like the theatre but I saw the play anyway.
f He studied hard and passed the exam.
g I did the washing up today and yesterday. You never do it.
h I thought the lesson was fun and our teacher is very nice.
i He had a bike accident at the weekend.
j He bought two bars of chocolate and gave one to his friend.

2 Write the past simple of these regular verbs.

a talk talked  e open opened  i pick picked  m use used b wait waited  f close closed  j like liked  n rest rested c stop stopped  g walk walked  k shop shopped  o print printed

i She / talk / to her friends

j We / give / him the answers

k Marcella / come / to the party

l The dog / eat / my breakfast!
past simple (2)

FORM

To form negatives, questions and short answers in the past simple, we use the auxiliary did + bare infinitive.

negative

I / You / He / She / It / We / They did not (didn’t) work yesterday.

questions

Did I / you / we / they work? Yes, I / you / he / she / it / we / they did.
No, I / you / he / she / it / we / they didn’t.

NOTE
I didn’t work.
Didn’t I work yesterday?
Did he arrive on time?
Did he arrive on time?
Did he arrive on time?

was and were

The verb to be follows a different pattern. We do not use did to form questions and negatives.

negative

I / She / He / It was not (wasn’t) there.
You / We / They were not (weren’t) there.

questions

Was I / she / he / it there?
Were you / we / they there?

She wasn’t at school yesterday.
They weren’t very nice to me.
Was I late?
Were you at the party?

USE

We use the past simple to talk about finished states, events and actions in the past.

A: Madame Curie lived in Paris and discovered radiation. We studied this last year.
B: She didn’t discover radiation in fact. That was Bacquerel.
A: So why did she win the Nobel Prize?

William Tell

This is the legend of William Tell, the national hero of Switzerland. There was a very cruel ruler, Hermann Gessler. One day his soldiers arrested William Tell and his son. Gessler a (know) knew that Tell was an expert with a crossbow. He took Tell's son and put an apple on his head. He b (order) ordered Tell to shoot the apple.

Tell took two arrows and c (put) put one in his crossbow. He aimed carefully and hit the apple without touching the boy. While the people d (cheer) cheered Gessler asked Tell about the second arrow. Tell said, "It's for you."

Gessler was very angry and decided to take Tell to his castle on the other side of Lake Lucerne. While they e (cross) crossed the lake a storm started and Tell was able to escape. Later, when Gessler and his soldiers arrived at the castle, Tell f (wait) waited for them there. As they g (walk) walked along the path to the castle, Tell h (jump) jumped out. With his crossbow and the second arrow, Tell i (kill) killed Gessler. Tell's example encouraged his people to fight for their freedom.

We use the present perfect

• to talk about life experiences. John has travelled all over the world.
  I’ve never stayed overnight in a hospital. Have you ever seen an eclipse?

• to talk about change over a period of time, contrasting the past with the present.
  They have made the exams more difficult. The climate has got warmer.

• to talk about achievements.
  Man has walked on the moon. Scientists have identified all the genes in human DNA.

• to talk about multiple actions repeated at different times.
  We’ve won six matches this season. I’ve seen this film three times.

present perfect or past simple?

All the examples above refer to things that happened at some unspecified time in the past. The exact time the action happened is not important – the important thing is that it is before now. To ‘fix’ things in the past (e.g., stages in our life, events in history, events in a narrative) we use an expression of time in the past, and the past simple tense.

Newton studied at Cambridge from 1661 to 1665.
Britain and France declared war when Germany invaded Poland.

Sometimes the time expression you choose determines which tense you must use. We use the past simple with ‘finished’ time expressions.

I went to the doctor yesterday. We didn’t have a maths class last week.
He spoke to me ten minutes ago.

With ‘unfinished’ time expressions we use the present perfect.

I’ve had four exams this week. There haven’t been any problems until now.
She’s lived in five different countries in her life.

I've worked here for five years. NOT I am working here for five years.

I've had a car since 2003. NOT I have a car since 2003.

USE

We use the present perfect to talk about situations which began in the past and continue into the present, and we want to say how long they have lasted. We often use how long, for and since with the present perfect to express this idea.

for and since

To say how long a current situation has lasted

- we use since with a point in time in the past (8 o'clock, 1975, August, last week, I was born, he arrived).

  I've lived here since 2004.
  Things have been better since I changed schools.

- we use for with a period of time that continues until now (82 years, a month, a few minutes, half an hour, ages, hundreds of years).

  I've lived here for four years. (NOT since four years ago.)
  My dad has had the same car for fifteen years!

You can also use for with the past simple. Compare these sentences.

present perfect: I've lived in Hamburg for three years / since 1998. (I still live in Hamburg.)

past simple: I lived in Hamburg for three years / from 1995 to 1998. (Now I live somewhere else.)

We also use the negative form of the present perfect with for and since to say the last time something happened.

The last time it snowed was at Christmas. = It hasn't snowed since Christmas.

The last time I spoke to David was two days ago. = I haven't spoken to David for two days.
1 Complete the sentences with for or since.

a Kathy has been off school since last Thursday.
b Graham has had his own PC a few months now.
c We haven’t had a holiday since Easter.
d The school has had that old microscope for years.
e They have been friends since they were at primary school.
f I haven’t seen you for a while. How are things going?

2 Complete the second sentence so it means the same as the first.

a The last time I cooked a meal was on Saturday.
   I haven’t cooked a meal since Saturday.
b The last time I washed up was a week ago.
   for a week.
c The last time my dad did any gardening was six months ago.
   for six months.
d The last time we helped with the shopping was at Christmas.
   since Christmas.
e The last time I did some DIY was when I painted the sitting room.
   I painted the sitting room.
f The last time John did any housework was a month ago.
   John month.

3 Rewrite these sentences in the present perfect. Use the verb in brackets.

a I met him at school. (know) I’ve known him since school.
b Jane arrived here an hour ago. (be) c You bought that mobile last year. (have) d I got this book in January. (have) e They got married two years ago. (be) f Sarah liked History when she six. (like)

Use

We use present perfect continuous to talk about actions in progress from the past up to the present (often with for or since).

- We’ve been studying Russian for three years.
- I’ve been doing homework since five o’clock.

The action may be recently finished or continuing.

- They’ve been waiting for an hour. You’re late. (The waiting is finished.)
- They’ve been waiting for an hour and he still isn’t here. (The waiting continues.)

We sometimes use the present perfect continuous to emphasise an action repeated many times, or the length of time of an action.

- I’ve been phoning you all day. Where were you?
- He’s been feeling ill for over a week and he isn’t getting better.

Present Perfect Simple or Continuous?

When we refer to the duration of an action or situation, there is often very little difference in meaning between the present perfect simple and present perfect continuous.

- How long have you worked / been working here?
- I’ve worked / been working here for five years.

The tense we use often depends on where we want to focus – on the activity itself or the result of the action.

- ‘Why are your hands dirty?’ ‘I’ve been fixing my bike’. (focus on the activity)
- ‘You look pleased.’ ‘Yes, I’ve fixed my bike.’ (focus on the finished result).

If the result of an action is a quantity (how much or how many) we do not use the continuous form.

- I’ve done three exercises so far. NOT I’ve been doing three exercises so far.
- They’ve been saving for a year and they’ve saved over a thousand pounds.

We do not usually use the continuous form with verbs which refer to states (eg to be, to want, to have, etc)

- I’ve had a cold for the last week. NOT I’ve been having a cold for the last week.
- You’ve been depressed since Christmas. NOT You’ve been being depressed.
1. Use the prompts to write present perfect continuous sentences.

USE

We can use will + bare infinitive to express predictions or beliefs about the future.

- World temperatures will rise.
- I’m sorry, but things won’t get any better.

We often introduce predictions with I think

- I think the DVD will disappear in ten years.
- I think the exam will be difficult.

We avoid saying I think ... won’t ...

We say I don’t think ... will ...

- I don’t think money will become obsolete.
- I don’t think it will rain this morning.

We can use will probably / possibly / definitely or probably / possibly / definitely won’t (notice the difference in word order) to show how certain we are that things will happen.

- The teacher thinks we’ll definitely / we definitely won’t pass the exam.
- Scientists will probably / probably won’t find a solution to global warming.

We can also use to be + going to + bare infinitive to make predictions.

- World temperatures are going to rise.
- I’m sorry, but things aren’t going to get any better.
- No, there isn’t going to be a war.

In situations where we are sure about the future because of something we see in the present, we use going to to make predictions, not will.

- She’s pregnant – she’s going to have a baby.
- She will have a baby.

NOT

- Look at those big black clouds! There’s going to be a storm.
- There will be a storm.
- And Beckham passes to Owen. He’s going to score.
- Goal! NOT He will score.

USE

We can use will, going to and the present continuous to express decisions about future actions. We use present simple for future events if they are part of a timetable.

We use going to when we have decided to do something, that is, when we are talking about our intentions or plans.

I’m going to buy a laptop so I can work on the train.

He’s going to work in the USA this summer.

We use present continuous to talk about future arrangements and plans, especially when they involve other people and have a time and date.

I’m going to see my tutor about my test results. (My intention – perhaps the tutor doesn’t know.)

I’m seeing my tutor about my exam results on Monday at nine. (An arrangement with the tutor.)

When future events are part of a schedule or timetable we use present simple.

The winter term starts on 7 January.

The train leaves at 11.15 and arrives at 12.35.

will and shall

We use will and shall to show our intentions and attitudes towards other people.

We use will to express our desire or willingness to do things when

- reacting to present situations (making decisions at the moment of speaking).

  I can’t do this. ‘Don’t worry. I’ll help you.’

  [phone rings] It’s for me. I’ll get it.

- making threats or promises.

  The next time you do that I’ll send you out of the room.

  Goodbye then. I’ll phone you tomorrow to tell you what happened.

- making requests.

  Will you carry this for me, please?

  Will you all be quiet?

We use shall with I and we in question forms to

- make a request for advice.

  What shall I tell him?

  Shall I take a coat?

- make a suggestion or an offer.

  Shall we go to the cinema tonight?

  Shall I phone you about the homework?

USE

We use questions with will and going to to ask about events and states in the future. The form we use depends on our intentions and feelings.

We use will for predictions and beliefs.

Will I pass the exam? Will he get a good job?

We use shall for offers and requests.

Shall I do that for you? Shall we watch TV?

We use going to for plans, and situations we have special knowledge about.

Are you going to see the concert tomorrow?
Is he going to be all right, Doctor?
1 Rewrite the statement as a yes / no question.

Scientists Predict the Major Developments of the Next 50 Years

The magazine New Scientist asked important scientists to make forecasts for the next fifty years. Here are some of their predictions.

- It will be easy to replace our hearts, kidneys and lungs with new ones when they stop working. We will grow these new organs in special animals. Accident victims will receive special genetic treatments and a damaged arm or leg will grow again. Surgeons will cure a broken back with new techniques.

- More expeditions will go to Mars. Rocks and soil from the planet will show how life started to evolve on Mars as well as on Earth. Explorations on the moon will discover water in the form of ice beneath the surface.

- Scientists will create a machine to detect and interpret the thoughts and emotions of animals. We will understand how animals think and feel. As a result, people will stop eating meat and fish and we will all become vegetarians.

Questions:

a. What will it be easy to replace?
   Hearts, kidneys and lungs which don’t work.

b. Where?
   In special animals.

c. Who?
   Accident victims.

d. How?
   With new techniques.

e. Which?
   To Mars.

f. Where?
   On the moon.

g. What?
   A machine to detect and interpret the thoughts and emotions of animals.

h. What?
   Vegetarians.

Extension Activity:

Write ten future questions for your favourite famous person.
have (got)

We can use have in several different ways.

auxiliary verb

We use have / has as an auxiliary verb to form the present perfect tense (see Units 14, 15 and 16).

Have you seen my pen? He hasn’t had a holiday for ten years.

possession

We use have as a verb to talk about possessions, relationships, illnesses and the characteristics of people and things. We form questions and negatives with the auxiliary verbs do, does and did.

I have a Toshiba laptop. The car doesn’t have any air conditioning.
Does she have any children? I didn’t have time to do my homework.
You have a terrible cold. Did you have any problems with the exercise?

In Britain, people often say have got instead of have. The structure is the same as the present perfect: have / has + got (past participle of get), but we use it to talk about the present.

I’ve got a Toshiba laptop. Has she got any children?
You’ve got a terrible cold. The car hasn’t got any air conditioning.

Have got is informal. It is common in conversation but not usual in written English. We don’t use got in the past.

When I was at university, I had a motorbike. (NOT I had got a motorbike.)

actions

We use have* + object to talk about different actions. In these expressions have can mean:

to eat / drink have breakfast / lunch / dinner / a meal / a drink / coffee to take have a bath / a shower / a rest / a holiday / a day off / a rest to enjoy have a good time / a nice evening to give birth to have a baby

Some verbs can be used as nouns after have*.
swim → have a swim walk → have a walk ride → have a ride chat → have a chat wash → have a wash look → have a look

* Have / has got cannot be used when have refers to actions.

obligation

We use have / have got + to-infinitive to talk about obligations and rules (see Unit 23).

I’ve got to go / I have to go to the doctor this afternoon.
We’ve got to do / We have to do this assignment for next week.
1 Use the prompts to write sentences with have got. Use short forms where possible.
   a They / a fast computer  They’ve got a fast computer.
   b She / a digital camera
   c They / good teacher
   d Sarah / long hair e He / a motorbike
   f She / friends in London g Dan / a cold
   h They / exam next week

2 Rewrite the sentences in Exercise 1 so they are true for you.
   a I’ve got a fast computer. / I haven’t got a fast computer.
   c d e f g
   h

3 Rewrite the sentences in Exercise 1 as questions.
   a Have they got a fast computer?
   f g
   h

4 Complete the sentence with have, has, do, or got. Use one word only.
   a Sue  has  three brothers.
   b Dave doesn’t  have  an Internet connection.
   c Pete’s  got  a dog which likes cats.
   d Have you  got  an appointment at the doctor today?
   e Does Bianca  have  any brothers or sisters?
   f Have you  got  the time?
   g They  have  they have cable TV at home?
   h The team doesn’t  have  a chance of winning today.
Bath or shower?

According to the results of a survey by a soap manufacturer, the shower is much more popular than the bath. This is mainly because people find it quicker and more economical a to have a shower than a bath. However, even in Spain, one of the ‘cleanest’ countries in the survey, only 43% of the population b have a shower every day. The average Spaniard c have five showers a week, with 20% d have a shower just once a week. The survey also showed that practically 100% of houses e have at least one shower, and that around 50% f have two. There are still some houses (ten per cent) which g have a full-sized bathtub, although this figure is decreasing.

6 Put the words in order to make a question.

a Why do people prefer to have a shower?

b How often do the Spaniards have a shower?

c How many showers do they have in Spain?

d Do you have a bath or a shower?

e How many showers do you have a week?

f How often do you have a bath?

g Will you let me have a look at your revision notes?
Read the encyclopaedia entry on Brazil. Then complete the dialogue with the words in the box.

has has has has hasn't have have got got

A What about Brazil? Brazil's a got. a huge population.
B Yes, it's also a huge country, so it has quite a low population density - only 20 people per square kilometre.
A So people are very spread out.
B Yes. It has five regions. The north has got a very high population.
A Because of the Amazon.
B Yes, it's all tropical rainforest.
A What about Rio?
B Rio and São Paulo are in the south east and they have the highest population densities, of course. There are a lot of people and they don't have much space - that's why the poorer people build houses on the sides of the hills.
A Don't they call them favela? I saw something about them in a magazine.
B Yes, a lot of famous football players come from them. A lot of people live in the south too. It has good agriculture, and the industries in the area are growing fast.
A That leaves one more region.
B Yes, the centre west of the country. This region has the capital, Brasilia, but it's still has a very low population. That was partly the reason for putting the capital there - to attract people to the area.

Brazil

Overall pop. density: 20 people/km². Varies from region to region:
- North - Amazon river and tropical rainforest; very low population density.
- North East - one in three Brazilians live here; problems with water supply; decreasing population.
- South West - Rio de Janeiro and São Paulo; economic centre of country; highest population density.
- South - high population density because of good agriculture and growing industry.
- Centre West - low population density, but growing because Brasilia, the capital, attracts people to the area.

EXTENSION ACTIVITY

Translate these sentences into your own language.

a Have you got any brothers or sisters?
b We don't have classes on Friday afternoon.
c The town hasn't got a very high population.
d I haven't got time to help you.
e Does Joe have a mobile phone?

Can we look words up in a dictionary? (Are we allowed to ?)

Past: We could use the computers in the library. (We were allowed to use them.)
You couldn’t talk during the exam. (You were not allowed to talk.)
Could you look words up in a dictionary? (Were you allowed to ?)

polite requests

We also use could to sound more polite when we are asking for permission.

Could I open the window, please?
Could we leave early today, sir?

Both must and have to express the idea that something is necessary or very important. With must, the speaker is expressing a personal opinion or authority.

_I must write to Aunt Julia. I haven’t written for months. (I think it’s important.)_

_You must do your homework more carefully. (The speaker thinks it’s important.)_

Must is used in written instructions and orders.

_Visitors must report to reception on arrival._

We use have to when commenting on something which is obligatory or important because of a law or rule, or because someone else says it is.

_Children have to start school when they are five. (It’s the law.)_

_We have to do page 8 for homework. (The teacher said so.)_

Don’t have to and mustn’t have completely different meanings from each other.

- Mustn’t expresses prohibition – it is important or necessary not to do something.
  _You mustn’t drink alcohol if you’re going to drive._
  _I mustn’t forget to post this letter tomorrow._

- Don’t have to is used when there is no obligation to do something or when something is not necessary.
  _You don’t have to come tomorrow. I’m not working tomorrow, so I don’t have to get up early._

- Should / shouldn’t expresses what the speaker thinks is the right or best thing to do / not to do.
  _You’re always buying useless things. You should spend your money more carefully._
  _If you have problems sleeping, you shouldn’t drink coffee after dinner._
1 Use the prompts and the correct form of have to to write sentences.

Read the information about food labelling.

Food labelling

It is obligatory for labels on food to include:
- the true name. The description must be accurate. Strawberry yoghurt can only be called ‘strawberry’ or show a picture of strawberries if the flavour comes from the real fruit.
- a complete list of ingredients, including water.
- a date mark. Foods like cheese, meat and fish must have a ‘use by’ date.
- instructions about how to prepare the food.
- the name and address of the food company.
- storage instructions, eg ‘keep in fridge after opening’.
- information about food additives like colouring, preservatives and sweeteners.
- the amount of any particular ingredient (butter, fruit) that the label highlights, eg ‘Made with butter’ or ‘with added fruit’.

Food products called ‘low calorie’ must have less than 40 calories (kcals) per 100g or 100ml. Drinks called ‘low calorie’ mustn’t contain more that 10 calories /42 joules per 100ml.

Decide if the sentences which follow are true or false. If they are false, write true sentences.

- a A ‘strawberry-flavoured’ yoghurt doesn’t have to contain real strawberries.

  True

- b The list of ingredients doesn’t have to include water.

  False. The list of ingredients has to include water.

- c The label on soft cheese must include a ‘use by’ date.

  True

- d You should buy fish and meat after the ‘use by’ date.

- e The label doesn’t have to say how to cook the food.

- f The label must include the name and address of the manufacturer.

- g The label must say how to eat the food.

- h ‘Low calorie’ soft drinks mustn’t have calories.

EXTENSION ACTIVITY

Write one sentence with each of these modals about rules you have to follow:

must, mustn’t, don’t have to, have to, should, shouldn’t.
must, may, might, could, can

We use must, can, may, might and could to say if we think things are certain or possible. They are modal verbs. There is no -s in the third person singular. After modal verbs, we use the bare infinitive.

must and can’t

We use must and can’t to express a logical deduction based on present evidence. We are certain something is true.

- You’ve been working all day. You must be tired.
- That can’t be Jim because he’s in Canada.
- You can’t be hungry after eating so much.

may, might and could

We use may, might and could to say something is possible in the present or the future. Perhaps it is true, will be true or will happen.

- She might / may / could be Dave’s sister. She looks like him. (Perhaps she is Dave’s sister.)
- Dave didn’t come to class today. He may / might / could be ill. (Perhaps he is ill.)
- If you take a taxi you may / might / could get there on time. (Perhaps you will get there on time.)
- Take a coat. It may / might / could rain later. (Perhaps it will rain.)

may not, might not

To express a negative possibility, we use may not or might not. Couldn’t has a different meaning.

Compare:

- Don’t worry. It may / might not ever happen. (Perhaps it won’t happen.)
- Don’t worry. It couldn’t ever happen. (It’s impossible for it to happen.)

can

We use can to say if we think something is possible because

- of someone’s ability.
  - When they are three, most children can speak.
  - Can you use a computer?
  - I can’t understand this exercise.

- it is permitted.
  - You can go home now if you want.
  - I’m sorry, madam, you can’t park here. (It isn’t permitted.)
  - Can I open the window? – Yes, of course you can.

We also use can to say that something is possible in a general sense.

- Learning a new language can be difficult.
- You can take a train there. There’s one every hour.

NOTE Can is different from may / might / could.

Compare:

- It can snow a lot here in winter. (It’s possible for it to snow in general.)
- It may snow this weekend. (Perhaps it will snow this weekend) NOT It can snow this weekend.

If we are talking about the possibility that something specific will happen, we use may / might / could.

Based on statistics published on the website of CARE - Community Road Accident Database European Transport Commission

For the population, there are far fewer road deaths in the UK and in Sweden than in other countries. It must be because they are safer drivers.

The UK have better roads but it’s difficult to say. In Sweden the road be good because they have a lot of snow and ice.

There are far more road accident deaths in Greece, Spain and Portugal. There be a reason for this. Perhaps the roads are not as good.

The percentage of drivers (compared to passengers) who die is very high in France and in Austria. There be more cars per family than in other countries. That would explain it because there would be fewer passengers.

Far more men are killed in accidents. This be because women are safer drivers or it be because there are more male drivers.

Differences in the quality of roads explain all the variations in accident figures.

A high percentage of pedestrians are killed in the UK. What be the reason for that?

The percentage of people killed in accidents with motorbikes and mopeds in Greece, Italy and Portugal be because of the warm weather. On the other hand, Spain is hot as well and the percentage in much lower so that be the reason.
The Theory of Evolution

Charles Darwin based his theory of evolution on his observations as a naturalist. He noticed that animals produce more young than they need to replace themselves. He also noticed that animals of the same species can be different, and that the young inherit these differences from their parents.

Imagine a bird species. One day a bird is born with a beak that is longer than the beak of other birds in the species. a Perhaps this longer beak helps the bird to catch more food. Because the bird can catch more food, it is healthier than the other birds. b It will possibly live longer as a result. The chicks inherit the gene for the longer beak. They also live longer and therefore have more chicks. The gene continues from generation to generation. c Eventually, it is possible that all the birds in the species will have the longer beak.

d We are certain that this process takes thousands of years. The better adapted animals are more successful. e When a species cannot evolve fast enough, it is possible for it to die out. f Perhaps this explains the disappearance of the dinosaurs.

Darwin’s Theory of Evolution is based on what we can see now. g It is not possible for us to be sure that it is correct. That is why it is a theory and not a law.

Rewrite the sentences in bold using the words given.

a might This longer beak might help the bird to catch more food.

b may

c could

d must e can f might

EXTENSION ACTIVITY

1 Translate these sentences into your own language.

a It can be difficult to learn a foreign language.
b There may be a storm this afternoon.
c Your computer could have a virus.
d Your answer to the maths problem can’t be right.
e She must be tired after the walk.

USE

In the following sentences the person or thing responsible for the action is
- unknown. Someone stole my bicycle yesterday.
- obvious. They arrested the terrorist early this morning.
- not important. Someone services the car every year.

Sometimes who or what causes an action is not important and we are more interested in what happens to a thing or a person. In the above situations the important information concerns the bicycle, the man and the car, and what happens or has happened to them. We can emphasize this using the passive.

The passive is formed with the verb to be + past participle. We put the bicycle, the man and car at the beginning of the sentence as the subject.

My bicycle was stolen yesterday.
The terrorist was arrested early this morning.
The car is serviced every year.

If necessary, you can use by to say who or what is responsible for the action.

Don Quixote was written by Cervantes.
The equipment is damaged by exposure to water.

The passive is more common in written than spoken English. It sounds formal and impersonal, and for this reason is often used in
- reports of crimes or legal procedures.
- newspaper reports.
- scientific writing.
- announcements.
- notices.

He was sentenced to two years in prison.
63 people were killed and 45 were injured in the accident.
Three millilitres of water are added to the mixture.
Flight IB 302 to London is delayed by two hours.
Customers are requested not to smoke.
1 Read the sentences and underline all examples of the passive.

a Great Expectations was written by Charles Dickens. He also wrote David Copperfield, Oliver Twist and many other popular books.

b Shampoo is tested on animals before it is sold in shops. This is because it might be dangerous for humans.

c The rainforests are disappearing, so most newspapers are printed on recycled paper.

d A new sports stadium is being built in London.

e Toyota cars are made in Japan. They are more environmentally friendly than other cars.

f The city of Atlantis has never been found, but many people are still looking for it.

g Star Wars was directed by George Lucas. It is one of the most popular films ever made.

h Football was invented in England and is now played all over the world.

i The Taj Mahal was built in the 17th century but nobody is sure who designed it.

j Chinese New Year is celebrated in January or February, depending on the moon.

2 Rewrite the sentences using the present passive without by.

a People speak English in Australia. English is spoken in Australia.

b They sell mineral water in plastic bottles.

c People don't use this room very often.

d The postman delivers the letters at 08.00.

e They are cleaning the classrooms now.

f People use the Internet all over the world.

g They are repairing the road at the moment.

h The teacher is marking the tests.

i They aren't using the computer.

j He is doing the washing up.

3 Rewrite the sentences using the past passive without by.

a They postponed the match. The match was postponed.

b They built this house a hundred years ago.

c Did anyone answer your e-mail?

d Someone found this wallet in the street.

e A teacher wrote this workbook last year.

f They included VAT in the bill.

g They were building the metro when we were there.

h Someone was locking the doors when we arrived.

i He gave me a test.

j Someone woke us up early.
4. Answer the questions using the passive form of the verbs below and by. If you need help, some of the answers are given below.

- invent
- replace
- form
- write own
- heat
- write
- manufacture

a. Who was the inventor of the light bulb?
   The light bulb was invented by Thomas Edison.

b. Which currency replaced the peseta, the franc, and the lira in 2002?
   The euro

h. Who was the author of Hamlet?
   Shakespeare

5. Match the dates to the historical events. Say when they happened using the prompts.

- 1939
- 1919
- 1963
- 1961
- 1912
- 1981
- 1953
- 1941
- 1990

Match the dates to the events:

a. Nelson Mandela / free Nelson Mandela was freed in 1990.

b. Kennedy / assassinate

c. Everest / first / climb

d. The Titanic / sink / iceberg

e. Second World War / declare

f. Atlantic / first / cross / plane breathe burn absorb store convert release compress

1 Carbon exists in the atmosphere, mostly in the form of carbon dioxide gas.
2 Carbon dioxide gas a is absorbed by plants through their leaves. The carbon dioxide b into carbohydrate that is stored in the plant.
3 People and animals eat plants. The carbon in the plants goes into the people. Some of the carbon is used to make up muscles and some c as fat.
4 When animals breathe to produce energy, the carbon stored in fat reacts with oxygen to form carbon dioxide. This d out and goes back into the atmosphere.
5 Plants and animals die. When this happens, the carbon goes into the ground.
6 Some of the dead plants and animals e over millions of years to form coal and oil.
7 Plants such as trees and coal and oil f as a fuel. When a fuel is burnt, it reacts with oxygen to produce carbon dioxide. This carbon dioxide g back into the atmosphere.

The carbon cycle

EXTENSION ACTIVITY

Write five sentences in the passive which are true about your life or country.
conditionals (1)

FORM

Conditional sentences have two clauses (or parts): an if clause which expresses the condition, and a clause which expresses the consequence of that condition.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Condition</th>
<th>Consequence</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>If there is something good on,</td>
<td>I usually stay in and watch TV.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>If you heat water to 100°C,</td>
<td>It boils.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>future condition</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>If I have time,</td>
<td>I will phone you.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>If he studies hard,</td>
<td>He will pass the exam.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

USE

zero conditionals

Examples 1 and 2 are open or zero conditionals. We use the simple present for both the if clause and the consequence clause to refer to a situation that is always true.

first conditionals

In examples 3 and 4 we use if + simple present, even though we are talking about a future condition.

if or when?

In zero conditionals we can use if or when with little or no change in meaning.

- If or When the temperature drops to below 0°C, water freezes.

In first conditionals (when we are talking about the future), we use if to express the condition. We do not use when. When refers to something that will definitely happen at a specific time, and does not express a condition.

- If I have time, I will phone you. (I may not have time, I don't know.)

NOTE You cannot use the future tense after if or when.

The if clause can come first (followed by a comma), or second. When if comes second, we don't use a comma.

- If I have time, I'll finish the homework this afternoon.

- I'll finish the homework this afternoon if I have time.

- If you arrive late, we won't wait for you.

- We won't wait if you arrive late.

unless

We often use unless instead of if ... not, especially in the context of something negative or unfortunate happening (the bad thing will happen except if something prevents it).

- Unless we get (If we don't get) more petrol, we won't get there.

- You'll catch a cold unless you put on (if you don't put on) some warm clothes.

- Unless we do (If we don't do) something now, global warming will get worse.

You cannot use unless in questions.

- What will you do if you don't pass your exams? NOT unless you pass your exams?
1 Match the sentence beginnings a to j with endings 1 to 10.

a If you cool water to zero degrees, it
b Most things expand
c When magnesium burns in oxygen, d If \( x \) times \( y \) is six and \( x \) is three,
e If you touch a live wire,
f Green plants can’t survive
g When a bicycle speeds up,
h If you put food in a fridge,
i If you rub a balloon with a cloth,
j If you fill a balloon with hydrogen,

1 it produces magnesium oxide.
2 it lasts longer.
3 forms ice.
4 you get static electricity.
5 you get an electric shock.
6 if you heat them.
7 it is more difficult to stop.
8 when there is no light.

4 Complete the sentences using one of the verbs below in the correct tense. Use each verb once.

find  get  do  take  travel  finish  go  stop  enjoy  have  save  visit  not get

A What will you do when you finish the exams?
B I'm not sure. If I c good enough results, I d to university.
A Me too, but if I can, I e a year off to work and then I f for six months.
B Where to?
A That depends. If I g enough money, I h Australia and the Far East.
B Won't you find it difficult to study again if you i for a year?
A I don't think so. I reckon I j my studies more if I k a break first.
B Anyway, unless you l a job first, you won't have enough money to travel.
A I know. I'll start to look for work straight away when we finish here in June.
B Well, you might be lucky. Come on, unless we do some studying now, we m places at university.

5 Complete the sentences using the conditional with will.

a You should work hard, or you won't pass the exam.
   If you study hard, you'll pass the exam.
b You shouldn't speak to the teacher like that or you'll get into trouble.
   If you

c Dave should go to football training tonight or he won't play on Saturday.
   Unless Dave

Global warming: what are the consequences?

What are the consequences of global warming? These are some predictions.

A rise of only a degree or two in the temperature of the planet will cause floods in many parts of the world. This is because the melting of the ice caps will cause a big rise in sea level. We will lose a lot of important farmland, and people will have to leave some of the world's biggest cities.

Some deserts are growing so fast that we can see and measure the changes. Some scientists believe this is because of human activity (mainly cutting down trees), but others think that it is an effect of global warming. Good agricultural land is being changed into desert.

Animals adapt to survive in the climate of the area where they live. If the climate changes, it will become too hot for some animals and too cold for others. Insects like mosquitoes will move to new areas and take malaria with them. Some crops won't grow and many people will starve.

Some scientists believe that nature will absorb the effects of greenhouse gases. For example, carbon dioxide dissolves easily in sea water. Shellfish use it to produce their shells. One theory is the shellfish will be able to absorb the extra carbon dioxide in the atmosphere.

Plants also absorb carbon dioxide. We know that the rainforests use carbon dioxide to photosynthesize and produce oxygen. This is why the rainforests are so important. If we don't protect them, the level of carbon dioxide will increase.

EXTENSION ACTIVITY

Complete the sentences with your own words.

a If it rains this afternoon,

b If I get enough money,

c I have my hair cut if d We put on warm clothes if e Unless there is a problem,

conditionals (2)

FORM

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>If + present</th>
<th>+ will</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1 If I have enough money, I'll go to Greece this summer.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>If + past</th>
<th>+ would + bare infinitive</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2 If I had enough money, I'd go to Greece this summer.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

USE

In example 1, the speaker thinks there is a real possibility of having enough money, so we use a first conditional (see unit 26). In sentence 2, the speaker doesn’t think it’s a real possibility. He is speculating. We use If + past, and would + bare infinitive to talk about imaginary present or future situations. This is sometimes called the second conditional. Look at these examples.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>imaginary present situation</th>
<th>imaginary present consequence</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3 If John studied, he would get better marks at school.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>imaginary future situation</th>
<th>imaginary future consequence</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>4 If I won a big lottery prize, I would travel around the world.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In example 3, John doesn’t study, and as a result he gets bad marks at school. The speaker is imagining the consequences of a different situation. In example 4, the speaker doesn’t think winning a lottery prize is very likely. He is just dreaming.

Many languages have a subjunctive tense to express this idea. In English we use the past tense when we are talking about imaginary present or future situations. Here are some more examples.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>If he were/ was a friend, I would invite him to the party this weekend.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5 If he were/ was a friend, I would invite him to the party this weekend.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Not If he would be a friend. Not I will invite ... |

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>What would you do if you found a wallet in the street?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>6 What would you do if you found a wallet in the street?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

We wouldn’t be lost if we had a map. |

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>If I were / was taller, I would be good at basketball.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8 If I were / was taller, I would be good at basketball.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In examples 5 and 8 we can use were instead of was.
In examples 6 and 7 if comes in the middle of the sentence, so there in no comma.

first or second conditional?

The type of conditional we use depends on the attitude of the speaker. Is it a real possibility, or is it just an imaginary situation?

- If an asteroid hits the earth, it will cause a new ice age. (The speaker thinks this is likely.)
- If an asteroid hit the earth, it would cause a new ice age. (The speaker thinks this is unlikely.)
1 Put the verb in brackets into the correct form. Is it first or second conditional?

a If you (study) hard, you will pass the exam.  first

b If the factory shuts, over 100 people (lose) their jobs.

c If he (give) up smoking, he'd feel a lot better.

d If I sold my grandfather’s watch, I (get) a lot of money for it.

e Would Peter mind if I (borrow) his bicycle?

f If you (go) to live in a different country, would you e-mail me?

h Don’t worry, your secret is safe. If I (see) John today, I  (not / tell) him.

g He's useless at football. If he (be) any good, he (be) in the school team.

2 Respond to the sentences using the prompts. Decide if the situation is real or imaginary.

a Are you going to tell her about it? (If / tell / she / laugh at me)
   No way.  If I told her about it she'd laugh at me.

b Do you think he is going to pass his driving test? (Unless / get nervous / not have / problems)
   I think so.  Unless he gets nervous he won't have any problems.

c Are you going to invite Sarah to the party? (If / invite / Dave / have to invite Sarah too)
   It depends.  If I invite Dave I'll have to invite Sarah too.

d I've got a bad headache but we haven't got any aspirin. (If / take / aspirin / you / feel better) Oh dear.  If we had any aspirin I'd feel better.

e He almost had an accident. (Unless / stop / drinking and driving / kill himself)
   What, again?  Unless he stops drinking and driving he could kill himself.

f I haven't enough time to start a hobby. (If / have / time / start one)

3 Complete the text with the verb in brackets. Use would + bare infinitive or the past tense.

What would happen if I drilled a tunnel through the centre of the Earth and jumped into it?

It would be impossible to do this on Earth because it is too hot, but you could do it on the moon. Imagine a tunnel through the moon. If you a (jump) jumped into the tunnel you

b (accelerate) toward the centre at a very high speed because of gravity. Then you

c (go) through the centre and start slowing down. Then, when you d (reach) the end of the tunnel on the other side of the moon, you

e (stop) , and then you

f (fall) back down the tunnel in the other direction. You g (go) backwards and forwards like this forever.
used to

FORM

used to + bare infinitive

She used to be a teacher.
They didn’t use to like cooking.
Did you use to live in the country?

to be + used to + -ing

I’m used to walking to work.
We’re not used to working hard.
Are you used to living alone?

USE

We use used to + bare infinitive to talk about how things were different in the past. Sometimes we want to talk about habitual behaviour in the past and to contrast it with behaviour now, which is different in some way.

Dave used to play rugby but now he plays football.
Do you like cycling? I used to cycle every day. I’d like to start again but I haven’t got time.

Sometimes we want to contrast past situations with present situations.

Geoff used to like science subjects but now he wants to study languages.
My dad used to have an old Opel Astra but he’s got a BMW now.

We can always use the past simple instead of used to, but we cannot always use used to instead of the past simple. For example, used to does not refer to single past events.

I went swimming last Saturday. NOT I used to go swimming last Saturday.

We form the negative and questions in the same way as regular verbs using did + use to,
(NOT did + used to).

I didn’t use to like coffee but now I love it. NOT didn’t used to Julian didn’t use to read much, but Harry Potter changed his attitude.

Did you use to play football or rugby at school? NOT Did you used to

We often say never used to instead of didn’t use to.

I never used to like tea, I always drank coffee.
You never used to be so bad-tempered.

We can only use used to to talk about the past. For frequent actions and events in the present, we use the past simple + usually.

Dominic usually arrives late to class. NOT Dominic uses to arrive late to class.

used to + -ing

There is a similar structure in English which is to be used to + -ing form. This structure means ‘to be accustomed to doing something’.

I used to get up early because I had to get to school at 08.00.
(This was the situation before, I no longer have to get up early because I don’t go to school.)
I’m used to getting up early. (I am accustomed to it because I’ve been doing it for some time.)
Jane isn’t used to having her evening meal so early.

Are you used to studying after school?
We’re all used to doing exams after doing so many.
1 Make sentences with the prompts and used to or didn’t use to about life in the USA.

One hundred years ago in the USA...

a ... the average life expectancy was 47.
   people / die earlier  People used to die earlier.
b ... only 14% of the homes had a bathtub.
   houses / have baths
c ... the maximum speed limit in most cities was 10 mph.
   cars / go so fast
d ... the average wage was $0.22 / hour.
   workers / earn a lot less e ... more than 95% of all births happened at home.
   women / have babies / in hospital
f ... only six per cent of all Americans were high school graduates.
   most teenagers / go / high school
g ... marijuana, heroin and morphine were all available in shops.
   be legal / buy addictive drugs
h ... there were only about 230 reported murders in the entire US.
   be / much less crime

2 Complete the dialogue with the verbs in the box and used to or didn’t use to.

A Darling, do you love me?
B Yes, of course I do.
A Do you? I think you used to love me, but I’m not sure that you do now.
B Why not?
A You used to give me more attention.
B I still do.
A No you don’t. You don’t give me and give me presents.
B Don’t be ridiculous.
A You really watch so much football. You didn’t used to go out with me.
B What are you talking about? I haven’t changed.
A Yes, you have. You never used to be angry like you are now.
B I’m not angry. In any case, you didn’t used to play football.
A No, I didn’t really. I just pretended I did.
B Did you?
A Yes, I did.
B Things are different now. We didn’t have the children and I didn’t used to work so hard.
A That’s another thing. You didn’t used to do more with the housework.
   Nowadays you don’t do anything.
3 Read the situations and write sentences using the prompts and be used to.

- John works at night and sleeps during the day. It doesn’t bother him. He’s had this job for two years.
  John / work / night John is used to working at night.

- People in the UK (have) an early evening meal, but I’m not.
- Joel is a student so he (live) on very little money.
- Matt is a baker so he (get) up early in the morning.
- When I was little I (believe) that all cats were female dogs.
5 Read the information about marriage in England and Wales.

Marriage and divorce in England and Wales

1 Since 1973, the number of marriages taking place in England and Wales has decreased. The highest number of marriages was in 1970 (almost 340,000) and has since fallen to less than half this number - 150,200 in 2002.

2 Compared to the past, people get married when they are older. The average age for first marriages in England and Wales in 2003 was 31 for men and 29 for women. This compares with 26 for men and 23 for women, 40 years earlier.

3 One explanation for this is an increase in the number of people who live together without getting married. There are also other factors. Nowadays, for example, more young people (especially women) continue their education after school and go on to higher education and university.

4 The number of couples who get divorced has gone up a lot. In 1961, there were 27,200 divorces. By 1969 the figure was 55,600. The number of divorces then doubled again by 1972, to 124,600.

5 Over the last ten years, the average age for divorce in England and Wales has risen from 39 to 42 for men, and from 36 to 40 for women.

Complete the sentences with the phrases in the box. Which paragraph does each sentence summarise? Write the number.

used to get didn’t use to be used to be didn’t use to go used to be didn’t use to live used to marry a More people used to get married in the UK than at present. 1 b In England and Wales there are more marriages than there are now.

c People didn’t use to live together before getting married.
d In general, women used to go to university.
e Divorce didn’t use to be so common.
f People used to marry earlier in life.
g The average age for divorce didn’t use to be lower.

6 Correct the sentences. All of them have one mistake.

a I use to do more sport. I used to do more sport.
b We didn’t used to have so much work.
c Did you use to be so good at swimming?
d Where did you used to live?
e He isn’t used to work hard.
f He used to working hard.
g Are you use to getting up early?
h People didn’t use to living so long.

EXTENSION ACTIVITY

Write down

a three things that you used to do, but now don’t.
b three things that you are used to doing.
like

USE

like as a verb

We use like with things and people.

_I like Ann and she likes me._ All children like ice cream.

We use like with the -ing form to say that we find certain activities enjoyable.

_We like going out at the weekend._ Helen likes meeting new people.

We use like with to-infinitive to say that we think it's a good idea to do something and make a habit of it.

_I like to get some exercise at least three times a week._ We like to have a good breakfast.

We use would + like to ask for something. Compare:

_I'd like a coffee, please._ (= I want one now) and _I like coffee._ (a general preference)

Would you like to come round for dinner tomorrow? Yes, I'd like that.

like as a preposition

We use like as a preposition to say things are similar.

_Bob is like his brother. They're both good at football._

_The kangaroo is a marsupial like the koala or the wallaby._

We use like after the verb look to say things have a similar appearance.

_The dolphin looks like a fish but in fact it's a mammal._

_Joe looked like his father. They both had red hair._

If we want someone to describe a person or thing we can ask _What is l are l was l were like?_

What was the exam like? Fine, I think I did OK.

What was your holiday like? Not very good. The hotel was very noisy.

We use What does look like? when we are asking about someone’s appearance. Compare:

What does Dave look like? He's tall and thin, and he wears glasses.

What is Dave like? He's always very cheerful; you'll like him.

Note that we use How is when we are asking about someone’s health.

“How is Dave?” “He's very well, thanks.”

like and as

Like and as are easily confused. We use as, not like, to say what job a person has, or what function something has.

He worked as a gardener while he was studying for his degree. NOT like a gardener.

You can use a computer as a television if you have the right hardware.
1 A friend is on a student exchange in the USA. Ask questions about life there.

a the food What's the food like?

b the school .............................................

c the cities .............................................

d the other students ..................................

e the cars .............................................

f the TV .............................................

2 Match the questions a to h to the answers 1 to 8.

a Do you like ice cream? 1 I don’t know. Go out with my friends I suppose.
b Would you like some ice cream? 2 Yes, I do, especially vanilla flavour.
c What does your brother look like? 3 Every week.
d What is your brother like? 4 He's not very tall, has blonde hair and wears glasses.
e What was your weekend like? 5 Yes please. Just some of the strawberry.
f What would you like to do this weekend? 6 Not much. I find it tiring.
g How often does she like to see you? 7 Not very interesting. I didn’t go out at all.
h Do you like travelling? 8 He's very bad-tempered most of the time.

3 Complete the dialogue with phrases using like.

A Hello Jim. Would you like something to drink?
B Oh, thanks, a coke, please. So, how was your holiday?
A It was great. We had a really good time.
B Where did you go this time?
A Tunis. It's very interesting and really cheap.
B What c the weather?
A Perfect. Hot and dry during the day and cool at night.
B d the food?
A Yes, it was delicious.
B And what e the people?
A They were very polite and friendly. We didn’t have any problems.
B So, would you go again?
A Yes, but not to the same hotel. We f it much. It was really ugly. In fact, it g a bus station. It was also a bit noisy at night.

h Did you like the film last night? No, I wouldn't.

i He's always behaving like a dictator.

j What is your sister like? Oh, she's fine thanks.

k Do you like my face? Would you like to look as me?
There are different ways to express the purpose of an action or the reason why we do things.

to-infinitive

I went to the shop to buy some food. NOT for buying some food.
My tutor called my parents to discuss my marks. NOT for discussing my marks.

for + noun

Compare these two sentences:
Dave went to the shop to buy some bread.
Dave went to the shop for some bread.

in order to

We normally prefer to use in order to + bare infinitive instead of the to-infinitive
- when we want to be more formal.
The scientists did the experiment in order to test the new drug.
In order to avoid any problems please install the anti-virus program.
- before verbs which indicate states (not actions) like know, seem, appear, understand, have, etc.
She is saving all her pocket money in order to have enough to go on holiday.
In order to understand this exercise, you need to pay close attention.

When the purpose is to avoid doing something, we have to use in order not to - not to is not possible.
In order not to upset you I didn’t say anything about the accident. NOT Not to upset you.
We’re going to leave now in order not to be late. NOT leave now not to be late.

so (that)

So (that) is a less formal way of saying ‘in order (not) to’. We use so (that) is optional
- with the negative forms don’t, doesn’t (purpose in the present or future), won’t (purpose in the future) and wouldn’t (for purpose in the past) where the purpose of an action is to avoid something.
  He’s going to take a map so he won’t / doesn’t get lost. (... in order not to get lost.)
  You should drive slowly so you don’t have an accident. (... in order not to have an accident.)
  We left early so we wouldn’t arrive late. (... in order not to arrive late.)
- with can (purpose in the present or future) or could (purpose in the past).
  I’m learning to type so I can write my assignments faster. (... in order to write ...)
  He’s doing the work now so he’ll be free at the weekend. (... in order to be ...)
  Jane stayed behind after the class so she could talk to the teacher. (... in order to talk ...)

We also use so (that) when one person does something to make it possible for another to do something else. NOTE We can’t use in order to in this situation.
He sent me an e-mail so I knew what time he was arriving. NOT in order + knew ...
She wears dark glasses so nobody recognizes her in the street.

USE

Defining relative clauses describe or identify the people or things we are talking about. For this reason they are also known as adjective clauses.

A man and a woman are talking to each other in a restaurant. Who are they?

- The woman who is talking to the man is the manager.
- The woman who the man is talking to is the manager.
- The customer is the man who is talking to the woman.
- The customer is the man who the woman is talking to.

The clauses in bold indicate which woman and man we are referring to.

* When the relative pronoun refers to the object of the adjective clause we often leave it out in spoken English. We can say:
  - The woman the man is talking to is the manager.
  - The customer is the man the woman is talking to.

We normally use who, which and that as relative pronouns.

We also use whose, where and when with defining relative clauses.

- We use whose to show that something belongs to someone or something.
  - There’s the man whose car they damaged.
  - I’ve found a plant whose flowers are yellow.
- Where refers to a place.
  - We went to a campsite where we stayed ten years ago.
- When refers to a time.
  - Is there a time when we can talk about this?
  - I remember the holiday when we went to Greece.

We can omit when after words which refer to time – the time, the day, the week, etc.
Underline all the defining relative clauses in the sentences, including those that do not have a relative pronoun.

a. Technology is something that we use every day.
b. The food that we eat, the places where we live, the clothes we wear are all things that technology helps us with.
c. The book you are using now was made with technology.
d. The mobile phone you have in your pocket is a piece of technology.
e. The house where you live is full of technology: washing machines, TVs, DVD players.
f. Scientists who work for big companies are busy making new products all the time.
g. A person whose job is to design new products is called a ‘product developer’.
h. Technology that was once very fashionable becomes out-of-date very quickly.
i. For example, CDs that used to be very modern are now old-fashioned because everyone wants mp3 players.
j. To be environmentally friendly, only buy products that can be recycled.

Complete the sentences with who, which, whose or where.

a. A person who doesn’t have a mobile phone is hard to contact.
b. An mp3 player has a 40GB memory is more expensive than one with a 20GB memory.
c. E-mails advertise things are called ‘spam’.
d. A subject you might like is Information Technology.
e. Someone is scared of technology is called a ‘technophobe’.
f. A place you can get cheap technology is the Internet.
g. A person e-mail account is full won’t be able to send or receive any e-mails.
h. Airports are you can buy new electronic products without paying tax.

Put the words in the correct order to complete the sentence.

a. night was great the we went to last film see
   The film we went to see last night was great.
b. dad the works going to close company is my for down
   The company my dad is working for is going to close.
c. picture you looking I are painted the at
   I am looking at the picture that you painted.
d. accident about you Peter had told the me
   Peter had told me about the accident.
e. spoke is the man my to you uncle
   I spoke to the man who is my uncle.
f. family the staying she Jane is likes with Jane likes staying with her family.
g. hotel you what the is the name at of stayed?

USE

There are two ways of reporting what people say.

1. John said “This book is very interesting.”
2. John said (that) the book was very interesting.

We can repeat the actual words spoken in quotation marks (“ “), as in sentence 1, or use reported speech as in sentence 2. When we use reported speech, the pronouns, tenses and adverbs of time and place may all change.

Say and tell are the most common reporting verbs. There is an important difference.

Tell is always followed by a direct object: tell + someone (that) + reported statement.

> He told her that he was tired. NOT He told that he was tired.

Say is not followed by a direct object: say (that) + reported statement.

> He said he was tired. He said to me he was tired. NOT He said me that he was tired.
1 Complete the sentences with said or told.

a. The new student said history was his favourite subject.
b. The teacher told us that sand was used to make glass.
c. Scientists have told us we shouldn’t use so much energy.
d. He told me that Athens was the capital of Greece.
e. Martina told me she didn’t like maths.
f. Jacob told his friend that he wanted to go to the library.
g. My parents told me that I couldn’t go to the party.
h. She told us pi was 3.14.
i. Joaquin told him it was his birthday that day.
j. He told us there were eight planets, not nine.

2 Complete the sentences from Exercise 1 in direct speech.

a. “My favourite subject is History.”
b. “Sand to make glass.”
c. “You so much energy.”
d. “Athens of Greece.”
e. “I maths.”
f. “I to the library.”
g. “You to the party.”
h. “Pi 3.14.”
i. “It today.”
j. “There , not nine.”

3 Rewrite these statements as reported speech. Make all necessary changes.

a. “I’ll see Sally this week.”
   He said I’ll see Sally this week.
b. “I work for a travel agency.”
   She said I work for a travel agency.
c. “You’ll have an exam tomorrow.”
   The teacher told us you’ll have an exam tomorrow.
d. “I think the film is brilliant.”
   John said I think the film is brilliant.
e. “I can’t go to the party tonight.”
   She said I can’t go to the party tonight.
f. “I don’t think it’s a very good idea.”
   He told us I don’t think it’s a very good idea.
g. “I’m thinking of going to England this summer.”
   She said I’m thinking of going to England this summer.
h. “I have my car here, so I can give you a lift.”
   She told him I have my car here, so I can give you a lift.
In Unit 32 we looked at ways of reporting statements using say or tell.

"I am tired." → John said that he was tired.
"I know the answer." → Jan told me that she knew the answer.
"I won’t see you tomorrow." → Dave said he wouldn’t see me the next day.
"We don’t like the book." → The students said they didn’t like the book.

We can report a question using the verbs ask or want to know.

He wanted to know how John was feeling.
She wanted to know who knew the answer.
I asked her if I would see her tomorrow.
The teacher asked them if they liked the book.

When we report a question there are some changes which are the same as for reported statements.
- changing of the person eg l → He
- change of tenses eg present tense → past tense
- changing of expressions of time eg yesterday → the day before

In reported questions there are some other changes. In reported questions
- we use the same word order as for a statement (subject – verb).
  How are you? They asked me how I was.
  How long are you staying here? He asked me how long I was staying there.
- we do not use the auxiliaries do I does I did or a question mark (?).
  Where do you live? He asked me where I lived.
  NOT He asked me where I did live.
  What time do you get up? She wanted to know what time I get up.
  NOT She wanted to know what time I do get up.
- with yes / no answers there is no question word (why, what, when, etc) so we use if or whether.
  Are you tired? He asked whether I was tired.
  Will you be at the party? She wanted to know if he would be at the party.
Complete the sentences to report the questions.

a. "What are you doing?" She asked him what he was doing.

b. "Do you want to go to the cinema?" They asked him.

c. "Where is the nearest bank?" He wanted to know.

h. "Do you ever go abroad?" We asked them.

A student has a meeting with his tutor. Put the dialogue in order.

TUTOR: Good morning Blakemore. Now, do you have your homework with you?

STUDENT: Err ... No, I don't but I can explain why.

STUDENT: Yes sir. I'll make a special effort to catch up with my work.

STUDENT: Thank you sir. Goodbye.

STUDENT: I know sir, but the final is on Friday.

STUDENT: I'm very busy this week because the football team is training every night.

TUTOR: Well, I'm sorry but your schoolwork is more important.

TUTOR: Oh dear. What is the excuse?

TUTOR: I understand but this year is very important for your future.

TUTOR: Very well. You can give me your homework next week.

Now complete the gaps to report the conversation.

BROWN: How did it go with the tutor last week?

SMITH: Not very well. He asked me if I had my homework and I had to tell him.

BROWN: What did you say?

SMITH: I said because.

BROWN: How did he react?

SMITH: He told me that but I said.

BROWN: And what did he say to that?

SMITH: Well, he said but.

BROWN: He always says that.

SMITH: Yeah, so I said but.

BROWN: Did he believe that?

SMITH: Yeah, he said next week.

BROWN: So you got away with it. That was lucky.
infinitive or -ing form?

verb + to-infinitive

We usually use to-infinitive after verbs which express plans, decisions, expectations and commitments (ideas about actions which follow).

arrange forget learn plan ask help manage promise decide hope offer refuse expect intend prepare want

He asked to leave the class early. We are learning to use a new program. My brother promised to help me with my homework.

Other verbs which take to-infinitive are those connected with the idea of making people think something: pretend, appear and seem.

verb + -ing form (gerund)

We use an -ing form after some common verbs.

avoid feel like mind* risk delay give up miss spend time / money dislike practise suggest enjoy keep put off understand

Please avoid arriving late for class tomorrow. My tutor suggested revising for the exam. How much time do you spend watching TV every day?

(*) We use mind in questions and negative sentences.

Did he mind lending you his notes?
I don’t mind being alone when I’m busy.

verb + to-infinitive or -ing form: little or no change in meaning

After like, love, hate, prefer, start, intend, begin, continue and prefer we can use either the to-infinitive or the -ing form with little or no change in meaning.

He started to play / playing the piano when he was four.
Why do you continue to behave / behaving in this way?
I like to get / getting up early in the morning.

Note: After would like, would prefer, would love, and would hate we use the to-infinitive.

I’d love to go the party. I’d hate to fail the exam. Would you like to have a coffee?

verb + to-infinitive or -ing form: different meanings

After other verbs (such as like, try, remember, forget, stop) you can use a to-infinitive or an -ing form, but the meaning changes.

I remembered to buy a pen on the way to school. (I didn’t forget to buy it.)
I remember locking the door when I left home. (I know I locked it.)
He stopped having lunch at school. (Now he has lunch at home.)
At twelve we stopped to have lunch. (The reason for stopping was to have lunch.)
We tried to call you but your mobile was off. (We made an attempt to call you.)
The scientist tried using different materials but none worked. (He did experiments with different materials to get a result.)
1 Underline the correct form.
   a  They expect you to work / working hard all year.
   b  We decided to go / going into town in the afternoon.
   c  Jane enjoys to write / writing poetry.
   d  They seem to be / being very kind.
   e  He enjoys to go / going cycling at the weekend.
   f  We hope to see / seeing you again soon.
   g  I can’t imagine your mum to get / getting angry.
   h  His parents agreed to let / letting him stay out late.
   i  Laura should stop to smoke / smoking.
   j  He wants to buy / buying a new computer game.
   k  Jenny practises to play / playing the piano every day.
   l  Would you mind to pay / paying for my lunch?
   m  Please avoid to make / making silly mistakes in this exercise.
   n  It is not worth to worry / worrying about.
   o  I suggested to go / going out for a walk.

2 Complete the sentence with the to-infinitive or -ing form of the verb in brackets.

A Yeah, I want (go) to university too. I’m trying (finish) that geography project, but I’ve still got lots to do.
B Me too. I’m planning (do) it this weekend. Anyway, see you later.

7 Complete the text with the to-infinitive or -ing form of the verbs in the box.

do be go study get spend improve benefit

A homework evaluation the kids are going to love

Some children do too much homework. According to data from the US Department of Education, if you spend more than two hours doing your homework, it can be bad for your marks.

Researchers looked at the maths scores of students in the eighth grade and the amount of homework they did. Then the results were compared with similar studies of homework in other countries. They expected the results to be similar around the world but they weren’t.

In the US scores are best for students when they do about one hour of homework each night. When they keep (do) longer than two or more hours their marks begin to fall.

In Japan when students study for more than two hours their marks start (do) down — but only slightly.

Canadian students seem to benefit from between one and two hours of homework — but when they do more, they don’t manage (get) their results. They are about the same as German students get higher marks when they do two to three hours homework a night, but risk (spend) lower scores when they do three or more hours.

The conclusion seems to be that you should avoid (spend) too much time on your homework!

Elizabeth Bathory: The Blood Countess (1560–1614)

Elizabeth Bathory was a Hungarian countess. According to legends, four women helped her to murder between 20 and 2,000 girls. She did not let her victims stay quickly, and liked to see them suffer. They say that she hoped do young by drinking blood.

She was born in Hungary in August 1560. In 1575, her family made her marry Francis Nadasdy, a soldier. Her husband knew about her activities, but he did not try to stop her. He was busy fighting wars, so he allowed her to do what she wanted. A witch taught Elizabeth black magic and encouraged her to take torturing and killing for pleasure. At first her victims were poor people, but later she began inviting rich families to take their daughters to the castle.

Because of her social position, it was difficult to stop her, but in the end the complaints forced the Emperor to take action. He ordered the prime minister to investigate the case. The prime minister arrested Elizabeth and her four helpers.

Elizabeth denied doing anything wrong, but the investigators made three of her helpers confess under torture. They were burned alive and Elizabeth was sealed into the walls of her castle. She survived for three years and died on August 21, 1614.
verbs and objects

Every sentence or clause has a subject and a verb. If the verb has an object, it is transitive. The object can take different forms. It might be a noun, a pronoun, a reflexive pronoun or a that clause.

pronoun: It's too difficult. I can't do it. NOT I can't do.
reflexive pronoun: Did you enjoy yourself at the party. NOT Did you enjoy at the party?
clause: She said that she was tired. NOT She said.

Examples of transitive verbs are: build, make, find, hate, hit, like, lock, remind, tell, and warn.

If the verb does not have an object, then the verb is intransitive.
I usually sleep very well.
The cat ran across the room.

Examples of intransitive verbs are: appear, arrive, come, disappear, exist, fall, go, happen, live, occur, remain, rise, sleep and wait.

Many verbs have both transitive and intransitive uses.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>transitive (with an object)</th>
<th>intransitive (without an object)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>We finished the exams.</td>
<td>The exams finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The teacher opened the door.</td>
<td>The door opened.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Did you telephone your parents?</td>
<td>Did Jim telephone this afternoon?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

With some verbs we can use two objects – usually a thing (direct object) and a person (indirect object). There are two possible word orders.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>a person + thing</th>
<th>b thing + to + person</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Peter gave my sister a book.</td>
<td>Peter gave a book to my sister.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>They pay John a lot of money.</td>
<td>They pay a lot of money to John.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>She showed us the new house.</td>
<td>She showed the new house to us.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

If we want to give special importance to the person, we use b. There are some cases where you must use the word order shown in b:
- when the thing is a pronoun.
  You must give it to John tomorrow. NOT You must give John it tomorrow.
- with certain verbs. For example: describe, explain, report, introduce, mention, prove, recommend, repeat, report, say, suggest.
  Can you explain the rule to me again? NOT Can you explain me the rule again?
  He recommended the A5 notebook to Joe. NOT He recommended Joe the A5 notebook.

With some verbs we use for + person instead of to + person.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>person + thing</th>
<th>thing + for + person</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>They bought the teacher a present.</td>
<td>They bought a present for the teacher.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>My mum left me my lunch on the table.</td>
<td>My mum left my lunch for me on the table.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Other examples of these verbs are: bring, buy, call, change, choose, cook, cut, do, fix, keep, leave, make, mend, order, prepare and save.

The Spanish Civil War

All wars are terrible but perhaps civil wars are the worst. They divide a communities and families, with brothers sometimes fighting on different sides. The Spanish Civil War (1936–1939) was no different. It lasted for three years and at the end over 350,000 were dead.

In 1936 Spain had big political and social problems. The Republicans, Socialists, Communists and Anarchists wanted b. On the other side there were Monarchists, Carlists, the Falange and the Catholic Church. They wanted to keep their power and position and they hated the new republican government.

Franco and some other Spanish army generals began the war on 18 July 1936. At the beginning, about half the army supported c and about half joined Franco and the rebels. However, the rebels had the best soldiers while the republican army had d and was inefficient.

Both Hitler and Mussolini helped Franco and German and Italian forces bomb e (the subject of the famous painting by Picasso.) The republicans had problems getting help from abroad. Russia supplied f and the volunteers of the International Brigades fought with them.

Franco and the rebels expected g but they were wrong. They quickly took control of most of the country, but failed in Barcelona and Madrid. The fighting continued for three long years before Franco was able to announce h.

EXTENSION ACTIVITY

Translate these sentences into your own language.

a We gave Mr Jones a gold watch when he retired.
b I've mended that old clock for you.
c The teacher didn't explain the rule to us.
d I've left the books for you on the table.
e You gave us the homework yesterday.
linking words (1)

Look at these two sentences:

It was raining. I took my umbrella.

We can join them together to form one sentence like this:

It was raining, so I took my umbrella.

The two clauses in the sentence are joined with the word so. The word so shows that the second idea is the result of the first.

So is a conjunction. A conjunction is a word which joins two separate ideas together into a single sentence. Conjunctions have different functions.

and, but, or, so

We put and, but, or and so in the middle of a sentence, usually preceded by a comma.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>function</th>
<th>example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>and</td>
<td>The lesson finished, and everyone went home. She doesn’t like him, and he doesn’t like her.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>but</td>
<td>I didn’t like the film, but Andy thought it was great. They are English, but they live in France.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>or</td>
<td>We could go out, or we could stay in and watch TV. Do you want a cup of tea, or would you prefer coffee?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>so</td>
<td>Jane was sick, so she didn’t go to school. I arrived late, so I didn’t see John.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

because, as, although, even though

We can put because, as, although and even though at the beginning of a sentence (with a comma at the end of the clause) or in the middle (with no comma).

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>function</th>
<th>example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>although</td>
<td>Although it was hot, he was wearing a coat. He was wearing a coat although it was hot.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>even though</td>
<td>I failed the exam even though I studied for it. Even though it was 40° in the shade, he kept his jacket on.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>because</td>
<td>Because I was often late, I lost my job. I lost my job because I was often late.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as</td>
<td>As I didn’t know anyone at the party, I went home. I went home as I didn’t know anyone at the party.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

so and because / as

So, because and as are conjunctions which show relationships of cause and result. Compare:

result ← cause: We didn’t go to the match because / as we had to study.

cause → result: We had to study so we didn’t go to the match.
1 Complete the sentence with one of the words in the box.

5 Read the text about how to connect a plug. Then underline the correct conjunction.

Household wiring

In nearly all countries, household electricity has alternating current (AC). In Europe the frequency of alternating current is 50Hz, but in the USA it is 60Hz. The voltage and power rating can also vary from place to place as some electrical devices will work in one country, but not in others.

The electrical cable used in household circuits consists of three wires:

- The brown (or red) wire is the live wire. The current of the live wire alternates from positive to negative, so the current flows backwards and forwards through the circuit. If you touch a live wire, you get a shock although the current passes through your body to the earth.

- The blue (or black) wire is the neutral wire. It completes the circuit by providing the return path to the mains supply but there is no danger of an electric shock when you touch it.

- The green and yellow wire is the earth wire. This wire is for safety purposes as some electrical appliances have metal cases. If the covering of a live wire becomes damaged, the wire might make contact with the case. This makes the case ‘live’, but so there is a danger of electrical shock. However, if the case is connected to the earth wire, the current will flow to earth through the wire instead of through the person.

- Because the switch must be on the live wire it is very important to wire domestic sockets and plugs correctly. If the switch is on the neutral wire, turning off the switch on the wall socket will not disconnect the appliance from the live terminal and the appliance will still be live. This means that although the current is switched off it is still possible to get a shock from it.
What is money?

Everybody uses money. We all want it, work for it and think about it, a . Throughout history people have used things like animal skins as money. A standard unit of value like an animal skin made it easier to buy and sell products and services. In those days, the things people used were valuable because they were useful, b . It was also important that they were strong and easy to carry and store.

Gold is another example of something people have used as money, c . It is valuable because people want it. It’s not very useful – you can’t eat it or use it to keep warm, d . Gold is something that is only valuable e . The use of gold as money gives us an idea of how our modern money works. The money we use is made of paper and cheap metals, f . This is the result of our perception and ‘faith’, g they have symbolic value. They represent the power to buy things. Money is valuable because we want it, but we only want it h .

Now write the number of each phrase below (1-8) in the gaps.

1 but what is money
2 but most people think that it is beautiful
3 but it has value in the same way as gold does
4 so people wanted them
5 Although the notes and coins have no material value
6 because we can obtain a desired product or service
7 but in a different way
8 because people agree it is

In Unit 37 we saw how we can use conjunctions as linking words to join two separate sentences together in a single sentence. We can also use adverbials as linking words and phrases to connect ideas from one sentence to another. Compare:

* Howard Hughes died a very rich man, but he did not have a happy life.
* Howard Hughes died a very rich man. However, he did not have a happy life.

NOT Howard Hughes died a very rich man; however, he did not have a happy life.

We use but to join two ideas in one sentence. We use however to link the idea of the second sentence to the idea in the first sentence.

* Most of these linking words and phrases come at the beginning of the sentence, but we usually put also before the verb (and after the verb to be). Too and as well always come at the end of a sentence or clause. We can also put for example / for instance in the middle of the sentence (with a comma before and after) or at the end.

  * Doctors, for instance / for example, do five years at university. Doctors do five years at university for instance / example.
1 Complete the sentence with however, as a result, then, otherwise, in fact, also or as well.

a My penpal has lived in the Alps all his life. However, he has never learnt to ski.
b I had a problem with my bike. Therefore, I was late for school.

indirect and polite questions

Sometimes we put a question ‘inside’ another sentence. There are two ways we can do this.

indirect questions

An indirect question looks like a question inside a statement. It does not directly ask a question, and it does not have a question mark (?) at the end.

I don’t know where he is going. (Where is he going? I don’t know.)
She didn’t tell us what she does. (What does she do? She didn’t tell us.)

In an indirect question there is a clause (subject-verb- [object]) after either a question word or if.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>with a question word</th>
<th>with if or whether</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(who, why, what, when,</td>
<td>I (don’t) know</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>where or how)</td>
<td>I (can’t) remember</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>I’d like to know</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>He hasn’t told us</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>We need to find out</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>I wonder</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

As in reported questions (see Unit 33), we do not use the interrogative word order or the auxiliaries do, does or did.

I’d like to know why you shouted. NOT I’d like to know why did you shout.
I wonder if she arrived on time. NOT I wonder if she did arrive on time.

polite questions

Sometimes we introduce questions with another question like Could you tell me...? or Do you know...? as a more indirect way of asking for information, and to sound more polite. These ‘questions within questions’ are common in more formal speech. They are similar to indirect questions, but they have a question mark (?) at the end.

Where does he live? Do you know? → Do you know where he lives?
When is he arriving? Can you tell me? → Can you tell me when he is arriving?

Here are some more examples.

EXTENSION ACTIVITY
Complete the sentences with your own words.

a I don’t know where b Do you know why

c Can anyone tell me if d Do you know when e I wonder what of and possessive 's

FORM

We use an apostrophe and an s to show ownership by a person or animal of an object, idea or quality. A noun with 's at the end indicates possession of the noun that follows it.

Joe's new computer  Suzanne's essay  the dog's bowl  the teacher's explanation  Charles's bike*

* We usually add 's even if the name ends in 's'. Exceptions are Jesus (Jesus' disciples) and nouns ending in an 'iz' sound (Jeff Bridges' film career).

Plural nouns just have an apostrophe after the s.

the students' committee  the lions' cage  my parents' house

When two or more named people share something, we put 's only after the last noun.

I really enjoyed Julia and Phil's party last Saturday.

When we talk about different things belonging to different people we put 's after each.

Both Hugo's and Jacinto's marks were really good last term.

USE

possessive 's only

We use 's

- when we talk about things belonging to a person or an animal.
  The cat's basket is in the kitchen.

- when someone has done or created something.
  Have you seen Clint Eastwood's new film? (Eastwood directed the film.)
  Have you read James's letter? (James wrote the letter.)

- for an action done to or by a particular person.
  The police are investigating the woman's murder.  The head teacher's resignation was a surprise.

- to say when specific events happen or how long they last.
  Sunday's match was a disaster. (The match was on Sunday.)
  We've got two months' holiday now. (The holiday lasts two months.)

of or possessive 's

We can also use of to show how one thing 'belongs' to another. When we are talking about organizations, countries and places we can usually use either of or a possessive 's.

The rules of the school are very strict.  The school's rules are very strict.
The population of China is enormous.  China's population is enormous.
The streets of London are very crowded.  London's streets are very crowded.

For inanimate objects we generally use of to show that one thing belongs to another.

There was snow on the top of the mountain. NOT the mountain's top.
I'll give you your homework at the end of the lesson. NOT the lesson's end.

However, in some cases where we can use of (but not 's), we can put one noun in front of another to form a compound noun. The first noun is like an adjective qualifying the second noun. You have to note examples of this because there are no easy rules to tell you which form you can use.

The corner of the street or The street corner  NOT The street's corner
The results of the exam or The exam results  NOT The exam's results

We also use of instead of 's with a long phrase.

Have you got the telephone number of the boy we met on Friday?
NOT Have you got the boy we met on Friday's telephone number?
1 Rewrite each phrase using the possessive apostrophe.

a the son of Mr Smith    Mr Smith's son b the daughter of Mrs Charles e the water bowl of the dog f the project of Guillaume and Henri g the motorbikes that belong to Sam and Phil h the speech of the President

i the research of Dr Ulrich j the products that the company makes k the feathers of the birds

2 Look at each sentence. If it is correct, give it a tick (✓). If it is wrong, rewrite it correctly.

a Marie Curie is famous for radioactivity's discovery.
   Marie Curie is famous for the discovery of radioactivity.

b Sunday's meeting was to vote for the European Constitution.

c We have a class in Information's Technology tomorrow.

d Next week's exam will be a disaster.

e Have you seen the new scooter of Heinrich?

f The cat climbed up to the tree's top.

g He asked to see me at the end of the class.

h I don't like this coat's colour.

i Europe's trees are in danger of being damaged by acid rain.

j Shakespeare and Goethe's work cannot really be compared.

k I cried at the end of the film.

l Do you like the new book of Simon Clarke?

m The CD's cover is broken.

n Marek's and Pawel's exam results were very good.
Rewrite the two sentences as one sentence using ‘s.

a) Sally has eyes. They are green.
   Sally’s eyes are green.

b) Dave is married. His wife is a doctor.

c) My dad had an operation. It was successful.

d) Ian McEwan has written a new book. It’s very good.

e) I’ve got a holiday at Easter. It lasts for ten days.

f) It was a very boring lesson. It was yesterday.

g) Mr and Mrs Davis have a house. It’s over there.

h) Derek sent me an e-mail. It didn’t say very much.

i) Somebody murdered a man. They mentioned it on the news.

4 Read this text about how colour television works. All instances of the word of have been removed. Put a slash (/) where they should go. The first one has been done for you. There are nine more examples.

Colour television

In science, red, green and blue are primary colours because they cannot be made from other colours / light. (The primary colours an artist uses are not the same — they are red, yellow and blue.) When they are mixed, the combination of the three colours is white light.

If you look closely at the screen of a colour TV you will see many lines tiny dots. They are divided into sets - one red, one green and one blue. The amount red, blue and green light emitted by each dot is controlled separately by three beams of electrons. These beams scan across the screen, activating each set dots many times per second. This gives the effect a continuous picture. All the colours that we see on the screen are obtained by varying the strength red, blue and green in each group dots.
Read this short biography of Beethoven.

The Life of Beethoven

Ludwig van Beethoven was a German composer of classical music and a Beethoven was born in Bonn, Germany in 1770. No one is absolutely sure of his birth date, although 16 December is the probable date. Beethoven’s father was a musician. He gave the young Ludwig his first cello.

In 1792 Beethoven moved to Vienna. Unlike other composers who depended on the support of the church or a noble court, he earned his living with public performances, and money from noblemen who recognized his talent.

He composed symphonies, string quartets, concertos, piano sonatas and one opera. He extended the musical forms of the time.

He was interested in the ideals of the Enlightenment, and the fourth movement of his Ninth Symphony includes Schiller’s ‘Ode to Joy’.

Beethoven had a complicated life. When he was 28, he started to go deaf. He was a difficult person and often argued with his family and friends. On top of all this he often had money problems. Beethoven was often in poor health, and in 1826 it suddenly got worse. His death the following year was probably the result of liver disease.

Now choose the correct forms from each of the pairs below (A or B), and match them to the gaps in the text.

1 A the most important musician between the Classical and Romantic eras
   B between the Classical and Romantic eras’ most important musician
2 A liver’s disease

(*) Don’t confuse its (possessive adjective) with it’s. It’s is the contraction of it is. For example, It’s okay. It’s going to be fine and it’s a lovely day.

reflexive pronouns – myself, yourself, himself, herself, itself, ourselves, yourselves, themselves

We use a reflexive pronoun when
- we want to give emphasis to the subject of the sentence.
  I created the program myself (with no help.) They made all the preparations themselves.
- the subject and object of the sentence are the same.
  She hurt herself skiing.
  We enjoyed ourselves on the trip. We had a good time. NOT We enjoyed on-the-trip.
- as an object after a preposition to refer to the subject.
  Doug bought a present for himself. Why are you talking to yourself?

You can only use a reflexive pronoun (myself, yourself, themselves, etc) if a subject pronoun (I, you, they etc) comes before it in a sentence.
  They gave a book to John and me. NOT They gave a book to John and myself.

demonstrative pronouns and adjectives – this, that, these, those

We use this, that, these and those to ‘point to’ things. This and these are for things we see as close to us and that and those for things which are at a distance eg This is my book (the one in my hand) and that is yours (the one over there). We can use these words

- as pronouns (instead of a noun).
  This is nice! (what we are eating.)
  That was nice! (after a good meal.)
  These are absolutely delicious! (biscuits)
  Are you going to wear those? (trousers)

- as adjectives (before a noun).
  This book is great.
  That film last night was awful.
  I bought these jeans last week. (the ones I’m wearing) You’ve had those shoes for years. (the ones you’re wearing.)
1. Complete the sentence with a personal pronoun for the words in brackets.

Dear Kyra,

   Thank you for a       letter. It was interesting to hear about your life. Now I want to tell you something about b

   Well, I am still at school. I have a brother. He is older than c and goes to university. We don’t get on very well. My dad is a teacher but my mum doesn’t work, d       is a housewife. We have a cate       name is Muxu.

   My family and I live in a flat in a small town. That’s normal here - people don’t usually live in houses in my country. What about in f       ? The town isn’t very pretty but we live close to the sea and to mountains. That means we can go to the beach in summer and skiing in the winter.

   At school I’m studying maths, physics, chemistry and biology. I think g       subjects are more difficult than studying literature and the arts. I want to be a doctor. What about h       plans?

   Anyway, i       is the first time I’ve written a letter in English so I hope you can understand j       . Take care of k       and write soon.

David.
indefinite pronouns

FORM

We use words such as something, everyone, nowhere and anytime to talk about people, things, places and time in a general ‘indefinite’ way, perhaps because you don’t know or don’t want to be specific about who or what someone / something is. Indefinite pronouns express the ideas of all, any, none, or some.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>ALL</th>
<th>SOME</th>

<tr>

</tbody>
</table>

USE

As the subject of a sentence, all the indefinite pronouns take the singular form of the verb.

Has anyone called this morning?  NOT  Have anyone called this morning?
Everybody likes ice cream.  NOT  Everybody like ice cream.

However, we normally use they, them and their to refer back to indefinite pronouns.

Has everyone done their homework?  If anyone wants to say something, they should do it now.

any-

We can use pronouns with any- in

- sentences with a positive verb when there is no limit to the possibilities.
  I can do anything I want.
  Anyone can understand this.

- in sentences with a negative verb to mean ‘none’ (see pronouns with no- below).
  There isn’t anybody here today.
  Or There is nobody/no one here today.
  I can’t do anything about this.
  Or I can do nothing about this.

- questions.
  Is there anything I can do to help you?
  Is anyone here a doctor?

no-

We use pronouns with no- in

- sentences with a positive verb to mean no people, things, or places.
  Nobody came to class yesterday.
  Nothing happens in the film, it’s really boring.

We don’t use no- in sentences with not, we use any- (see above).

  There isn’t anything in the fridge.
  Or There is nothing in the fridge.
  NOT There isn’t nothing in the fridge.

every-

We use pronouns with every-

- as the subject in sentences with a positive verb to mean all the people, things or places in a group.
  Everyone came to football training.
  (All the members of the team.)
  I got home and everything was in a mess.
  (All the things in the house.)

When we want to express the idea of ‘not all the people’ we can use not everyone / everybody with a positive verb.

  Not everyone came to football training.
  NOT Everyone didn’t come to football training.
  Not everybody likes tomatoes. OR Some people don’t like tomatoes.

Pronouns with every- can be the object of a sentence with a negative verb.

  I don’t know everybody in the class but I do know most of them.

j I don't know who, but has broken the window.
k Jane didn't know at the party.

3 Some of the lines containing an indefinite pronoun in the dialogue below contain a mistake (wrong pronoun or wrong verb form). If the line is correct, put a tick. If there is a mistake, cross out the word which is wrong and put the right one in the gap.

A: Have you seen my iPod?
B: No, sorry. I haven't.
A: I've looked anywhere for it and I can't find it. a everywhere
B: It must be somewhere around. When did you last have it? b
A: I had it when I arrived this morning and I haven't been nowhere else. c
B: Have anyone else been in here? d
A: No, I don't think nobody has. e
B: Well, I shouldn't worry, there must be anywhere you haven't looked. What about under those papers? f
A: Hang on. Oh, well done. Here it is. Thank goodness for that.
B: You see. There was something to get so upset about. g
A: I know, but everything seem to be going wrong recently. h
B: Well, that's one less thing to worry about.
A: Yes, 'All's well that ends well', as everyone said. i B: It's the title of a play by Shakespeare.
A: Oh, is it? It's true, I suppose. Nothing that ends well is not really a problem. j
Read this article about bullying and underline the correct words.

Bullying: Don’t Be A Victim

If you are being bullied, there is always a something / anything you can do to stop it. Bullying is not just a problem at school – it can happen anywhere / somewhere. You can be bullied at home, at school or even at work. Bullying can happen anytime / anywhere, so it is very important that you learn how to react to it now.

Arguing or fighting back against a bully will only make the situation worse – a bully will look for a big reaction from you, so stay calm and if possible, don’t say or do anything / something. If there is no reaction, it makes attacking you less fun for the bully. Even if you’re scared, don’t show that you are, but don’t do nothing / anything to provoke the bully.

Of course, some situations are more serious, and you need to tell someone / everyone about it. Go to an older person you can trust like your parents or a teacher. Keep telling people until you find everyone / someone who will help.

Finally, remember that nobody / everybody deserves to be bullied. Never think that it’s your fault. You are a great person, so put a stop to the bullying now.

Great Expectations by Charles Dickens

Pip lives with his sister and her husband. When he is a young boy, he meets an escaped criminal and helps him to hide from everybody. Pip is poor and thinks he is special, but a rich old woman in his village, Miss Havisham, invites him to her house. Miss Havisham lives with a girl called Estella, and Pip falls in love with her because he has never met as beautiful. Sadly, Estella doesn’t love him and Pip grows up poor and miserable. When he is older, Pip gets some very good news: has given him lots of money and now he is rich. He moves to London and starts a new life and is very good for him. Pip thinks the money has come from Miss Havisham, but he is wrong, it has come from else. The criminal he helped as a boy has given him the money and now needs Pip’s help again. To make matters worse, Estella has married else. Pip goes to visit Miss Havisham, but there is a terrible fire and can save her and she dies. A very unhappy Pip tries to help the criminal leave England, but the police find him and he is sent to prison. seems to be going wrong for Pip, but he moves to Europe and starts a business. Many years later he returns home and meets Estella again. At the end of the novel they are friends again and there is the hope that, in the future, they will get married.

Somewhere Only We Know by Keane

I walked across an empty land
I knew the pathway like the back of my hand
I felt the earth beneath my feet
Sat by the river and it made me complete

Oh simple thing where have you gone
I'm getting old and I need a something to rely on
So tell me when you're gonna let me in
I'm getting tired and I need something to begin

I came across a fallen tree
I felt the branches of it looking at me
Is this the place we used to love?
Is this the place that I've been dreaming of?

Oh simple thing where have you gone
I'm getting old and I need something to rely on
So tell me when you're gonna let me in
I'm getting tired and I need something to begin

And if you have a minute why don't we go talk about it only we know?
This could be the end of only we know?
So why don't we go
only we know?

Oh simple thing where have you gone
I'm getting old and I need everything to rely on
So tell me when you're gonna let me in
I'm getting tired and I need everything to begin

So if you have a minute why don't we go talk about it only we know?
This could be the end of only we know?
So why don't we go
So why don't we go

This could be the end of only we know?
So why don't we go
only we know?

EXTENSION ACTIVITY
Write ten sentences about the room you're in beginning with indefinite pronouns.
countable and uncountable nouns

Compare these two lists of nouns.
A: coin detail suitcase job chair
B: money information luggage work furniture

The words in list A are names of things you can count. They are countable nouns. The words in list B are names of materials or things we see as ‘mass’, and not as separate items. You cannot count them, they are uncountable.

countable nouns

Countable nouns have a singular and plural form. Most plural forms of countable nouns end in -s: minute / minutes   brother / brothers   boy / boys   leaf / leaves

Some plural forms are irregular.
child / children   woman / women   mouse / mice   man / men

Some countable nouns have the same form for both singular and plural.
  a sheep / nine sheep   one salmon / three salmon

With countable nouns you can
- ask the question How many...?
  How many students are there? How many biscuits would you like?
- use a / an, some, any, one and other numbers.
  Have you got an apartment or a house? She has some friends in Seville.
  He owns three cars. Are there any tickets for the concert?

uncountable nouns

Uncountable nouns always go with a verb in the singular. You can
- ask the question How much...?
  How much time have you got? How much water do you want?
- use some or any, (but not a / an or a number).
  I have some information for you. I’m sorry, there isn’t any wine left. Have you got any mineral water?

Some nouns are countable when they refer to something specific and individual, or mean ‘a type of’ or ‘a cup / glass of’, and uncountable when they have a general meaning.
  I’d like a glass of water. (countable) Windows are made from glass. (uncountable)
  Would you like a coffee? (countable) Where does coffee come from? (uncountable)

Some uncountable nouns cause confusion because they end in -s. Examples of this type of noun are:
  news, athletics, economics, maths, politics, measles, diabetes.
  Do you do much athletics these days? Politics is boring.

With uncountable nouns, you can use a word or phrase which shows a part or a quantity of something.
  a piece of news   a litre of milk   half a bottle of water   two bars of soap

Nouns which refer to groups of things or people (eg government, team) can be singular or plural.
Sometimes we think of them as a single unit, and sometimes as a collection of different things or people.
  Real Madrid have / has lost three matches so far. The class is / are going on a school trip.

People is always plural.
  There were 30,000 people at the match. Some people still think the world is flat.

some or any?

We use some in affirmative sentences for uncountable nouns and plural countable nouns.
  There’s some water in the bottle. Some friends are coming round tonight.

We use any in negative sentences.
  He hasn’t got any money or any friends. There isn’t any milk left.

We can use either any or some in questions. We usually use any in requests for information.
  Have you got any notes from the last lesson? Is there any milk left?

We usually use some in offers and requests.
  Would you like some fruit? Can I have some sugar, please?
1 Complete the sentence with a, an, some or any.

The day after tomorrow?
Rising temperatures since 1980 suggest that the world's climate are / is changing. Many scientists believe that human activity cause / causes these changes. They say that the average temperature have / has increased by 0.6°C in the last 100 years and predict another rise of 3°C by 2100.

There is / are people who question the global warming theory. They say that climatic change is a political issue and that there isn't / aren't any scientific evidence for it. These scientists believe that there have always been periods of climatic change - long before human activity had effect / an effect. Other reasons are:

- Global warming research contain / contains many mistakes.
- Predictions about the climate are inaccurate because we do not fully understand how the climate work / works.
- Carbon dioxide does not have any / some significant impact on global temperatures.

However, more and more people believe we can't take any risk / any risks with our climate, and it is necessary to do something now - before it is too late.

8 Decide if each sentence is correct. If it is not, correct the mistake. If there are no mistakes, put a tick (√).

a How much people was there? How many people were there?

b I've got some news for you. √

c We've had a good weather recently.

d Would you like a cheese with your pasta?

e There are two fish in the tank.

f He lost two tooth in the accident.

g Let me give you an advice.

h How many homeworks have you got?

i Do you want some paper?
quantity

We use a quantifier before a noun to show the quantity or amount of something. There are two basic patterns – with and without of. When we need to use the, this, that, this, these, those, my, your etc before the noun, we put of after the quantifier.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>All</th>
<th>Most</th>
<th>Some</th>
<th>No</th>
<th>Any</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>trees</td>
<td>people</td>
<td>music</td>
<td>food</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>All of</th>
<th>Most of</th>
<th>Some of</th>
<th>None of</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>the trees / people / music / food</td>
<td>these / that music / food</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1 We can use all + of + the or all + the.
2 We use none instead of no before of.
3 A little / a few means ‘some’. Little / few emphasizes the ‘smallness’ of the quantity, and means the same as ‘not many’ or ‘not much’.

The quantifier we use depends on a) the quantity and b) whether the noun is countable or uncountable (see Unit 43).

COUNTABLE (eg trees, people)

- **?
  - How many apples would you like?
  - How many eggs did they eat?
- 100%
  - All students need to study.
  - All (of) the students failed the exam.
  - Most people have a car.
  - I’ve read most of his books.
  - A lot of / Lots of / Many features in the latest version of the program are new.
  - I knew a lot of / lots of / many of the people who were there.
  - In some / a few schools I know, the students wear a uniform.
  - Here are some / a few of the mistakes in your homework.
  - Not many / few people visited me in hospital.
  - Not many / Few of the rivers in Europe are unpolluted.

UNCOUNTABLE (eg music, food)

- **?
  - How much bread would you like?
  - How much cheese did they eat?
- 100%
  - All paper comes from trees.
  - Here’s all (of) the information.
  - I like most music.
  - He’s eaten most of the cheese.
  - Do you drink a lot of / lots of / much wine in your country?
  - A lot of / Lots of / Much of the stuff we study is quite boring.
  - If you’ve got some / a little money, you should buy a new calculator.
  - I’ve got some / a little of the cream you wanted.
  - There’s not much / little hope of winning the match on Saturday.
  - Not much of / Little of the food was very nice.
- 0%
  - There were no / There weren’t any messages on my mobile.
  - None of the messages were important.

We can also use quantifiers without a noun.

“Do you like Tom Cruise’s films?” “Well, I like some, but not all of them.”

“Do you want any ice cream?” “No thanks, I’ve just had some.”

We can put a quantifier before a pronoun.

“How many of you went on the trip?” “Oh, most of us went.”

Anthony has an amazing book collection but he hasn’t read any of them.

The cost of smoking

Everybody knows smoking is bad for your health. There are health warnings on packets of cigarettes in a most countries in the world. However, if you don’t smoke it can also save you b of money. It’s difficult to calculate what the costs really are because c smokers admit how much they smoke, but we can guess.

There are d people who smoke two packets of cigarettes a day. Not e packets of cigarettes cost less than €2.50, so the cost of smoking two packets a day for one year is at least €1,825. Then the health costs of smoking are €660 for each smoker. Now we have a total of €2,485 per smoker.

Smoking also costs employers a f money. According to g estimates an employee who smokes costs a company an extra €1,000 a year. Apart from smokers taking more sick leave, h the walls and furniture in the office are affected by tobacco smoke and need to be cleaned. If we add €1,000 to the previous total we reach the figure of €3,485 a year, or €290 a month. If the smoker continues smoking for fifty years, the final total would be €174,250, the price of a medium-sized flat in i European cities!

Complete the sentences with the, a, or an, or leave the space blank if no article is needed.

No gain without pain

Pain is necessary. It is a the body's way of telling us that something is wrong. However, scientists do not understand how pain works. People experience pain in different ways. It depends on different biological factors.

There is a very rare condition where the sufferer doesn't feel any pain at all. Doctors have only found 33 people with this condition. In one case, a young child broke his ankle but continued to play and run. One possible cause may be a lack of 'betaendorphin', a chemical which is responsible for controlling pain.

Pain stops us from doing things that can hurt us like putting our hand in fire, or burning ourselves with boiling water. It also means that we do something to protect an injured part of our body. For example, we are careful not to put weight on an injured ankle. This child mentioned above will keep hitting his head but it doesn't hurt him. On the other hand, normal children learn to be careful because their mistakes are painful.
6 Correct the mistakes with articles in the following sentences.

a  I like to spend time in an open air.
   I like to spend time in the open air.

b  I'm very interested in the history, especially history of South America.

f  A Yangtze is the famous river in China.

g  An Atlantic Ocean is smaller than a Pacific.

h  A Japanese make very good electronic products.

7 In the text below, 11 examples of the, a and an have been removed. Replace them. The first one has been done for you.

Tsunamis

Tsunami is Japanese for 'harbour wave'. It is a powerful ocean wave usually caused by earthquake under the sea. The movement of the ocean floor displaces water above it by several metres. The wave which this produces is different from normal wave. tsunami can have a wavelength of over 100 km and can travel long distances across the ocean at more than 700 km/h. As it approaches the coast, the wave slows down and increases in height. Normal waves hit beach and retreat very quickly. tsunami is more like extreme form of tide which rises and surges over the land with millions of tons of water. The water keeps coming for several minutes. The speed, height and power of tsunami make it very destructive. It can cause severe damage and many deaths in low-lying coastal areas.

On 26 December 2004 huge tsunami killed over 200,000 people in countries surrounding Indian Ocean. It was one of the worst natural disasters in recorded history.

EXTENSION ACTIVITY

Translate these sentences into your own language.

a  I would like to study biology at university.

b  He says that nature and the environment are his hobbies.

c  The dolphin is an intelligent animal.

d  The brain is a complex organ.

e  He injured his knee in a football match.
all, every, each, both

all

We use all before plural and uncountable nouns to refer to a group or a unit which is complete.

- All the people in the room were silent.
- Have you eaten all the bread?
- All the water leaked out of the bottle.
- All children need affection.
- I've invited all my friends to the party.
- I've been waiting all my life for this.

All can also be used to mean ‘everything’ (see also Unit 44).

- That's all, there is no more to pack.
- All's well that ends well.

All can also mean ‘the only thing’.

- I'm afraid that's all I can tell you.
- I'm tired and all I need is a hot bath!

all and every

Every has a similar meaning to all, but we can only use every before a singular noun (and with a verb in the singular). Compare:

- All students have to participate.
- Every student has to participate.

and

- All (of) the players were exhausted.
- Every player was exhausted.

each and every

Like every, we use each with a singular noun. We use each to direct attention to the members of a group as separate individuals. However, usually either word is possible.

- Each / Every child in the class has a notebook.
- We installed the anti-virus software on each / every computer.
- The President spoke to each / every member of the team.

We can use each with two or more people or things. We can use every for three or more, but it is normally used for big groups or numbers.

- He was carrying a suitcase in each hand. NOT in-every-hand

We can use each of with a plural noun, but we cannot say every of.

- We had to do each of the experiments again. OR every / each experiment
- Each of the classes is in a different room. OR Each / Every class is in a different room. OR All of the classes are in different rooms.

both, either and neither

We use both, either and neither to talk about two things. We use both with a plural noun.

- Both children were born in Italy.
- He has crashed both of the cars / both the cars / both cars.

You can also use both on its own.

- If you can't decide between the two jerseys, buy both.
- Jacques and Jerôme are French, and both come from Paris.

We can use either and neither with a singular noun or alone.

- There are two good hotels in town. Either place is fine. / Either is fine.
- We tested two ant-virus programs. Neither program is any good. / Neither is any good.

We can use either and neither with of and a plural noun.

- Neither of the films was any good.
- I didn't like either of the books I read this summer.

other, another, others

We use another and other before a noun to refer to something different or alternative. We have to use another with singular nouns.

- Would you like another cup of tea? I've still got another exercise to do.

We can use other with a singular noun or a plural noun.

- "There are other jobs you could try. Is there any other reason not to go?"

We can use another and others on their own.

- Here is one computer and there is another next door. Some students have arrived, but where are the others?

Weight, Mass and Inertia

What is the difference between mass and weight? It is confusing and people often think both words mean the same thing, but to an astronomer or a physicist concept is completely different.

What is weight? c. object in the universe attracts d. objects. The attraction depends on the size of the objects and the distance between them. This attraction is called gravity. Weight is the effect of the Earth’s gravity on objects on its surface. If you weigh 70 kg, that is the result of the Earth’s gravity on your body, but on e. planet of a different size your weight would be different.

What is mass? f. objects have a quality called ‘inertia’. Mass is a measure of how much inertia an object has. Imagine you are an astronaut floating in space with g. astronaut. In space h. of you would be weightless but i. of you would be mass-less. If you wanted to move the j. astronaut, you would have to push him to get him going and pull him to make him stop. A body in space has inertia, and therefore mass, but it has no weight.
adjectives

We use adjectives to modify nouns. However, unlike a noun, an adjective has no plural form.

There were three black dogs. NOT There were three blacks dogs.

We put most adjectives before a noun...

- We've got a new teacher. He's wearing an old jumper.
- ... or after ‘linking’ verbs like be, seem, look, feel, etc.
- That teacher is new. His jumper looked old.

There are certain adjectives that we normally only use with linking verbs. The most common are well, ill, afraid, alive, alone, asleep, aware, content, glad, ill, ready, sure, and well.

There are many adjectives formed from either the past participle or the -ing form of a verb. For example: surprised — surprising, bored — boring, tired — tiring, confused — confusing, etc. There is an important difference between the two.

We use the past participles of verbs as adjectives (ending with -ed) to describe how we feel about something or someone.

You must be tired after the journey.
The match was very bad and I was bored.
We were amused by Leonor’s jokes.

We use the present participles of verbs as adjectives (ending with -ing) to describe the thing or person that produces the feeling.

It must have been a very tiring journey.
It was a boring match and I fell asleep.
We found Leonor’s jokes amusing.

We can make adjectives stronger or weaker with words like very, a bit, quite, extremely, etc.

What was the talk like? Oh, it was very interesting.
Yesterday it was quite warm, but it’s extremely cold today.

You cannot put very or extremely before some adjectives because they are already ‘extreme’. Examples of these ‘extreme’ adjectives are: wonderful, fantastic, excellent, awful, terrible, etc. You can, however, use absolutely or really before these adjectives.

That’s a really excellent book. NOT That’s a very excellent book.
He scored an absolutely fantastic goal. NOT He scored an extremely fantastic goal.

Sometimes we want to use two or more adjectives before a noun. Adjectives which express opinion always go before other adjectives. Other adjectives usually go in the order given below.

dramatic — dramatically (3)

1 Adjectives of more than one syllable ending in -y: change the -y to -i and add -ly.
2 Adjectives ending in -ble: remove the -e and add -ly.
3 Adjectives ending in -ic: add -ally.

The adjective good does not follow the -ly rule. Its related adverb is well.

He’s a good football player. He plays football well.

Some adverbs and adjectives are the same: e.g. fast, hard, early, late, high, low, right, wrong.

It’s a fast computer. This computer boots up fast.

He’s a hard worker. He studies hard.

Note that some adjectives end in -ly and are not adverbs: lovely, friendly, silly, lonely, deadly, etc. To make an adverb from these adjectives we say in a lively / friendly / silly way / manner.

He was talking in a silly way. They danced in a lively manner.

One adverb that causes confusion is hardly. It is not the adverb relating to hard (see above). It means almost not. We use it before a verb.

I’m sorry, I hardly know him. (= I almost don’t know him.)

I’ve hardly studied for the test because I was ill. (= I almost haven’t studied.)

USE

Look at these sentences:
1. This is a slow train.
2. This train seems slow.
3. This train goes slowly.

Slow is an adjective. We use adjectives to describe nouns, as in sentences 1 and 2 above. If we want to say how things happen, we use an adverb. In 3, slowly is an adverb of manner.

word order

Adverbs of manner can come before or after a verb ...

He drove carefully because the weather was bad. She quietly went up the stairs.

... but they must come after an object if there is one.

You speak French well. NOT You speak well-French.

He answered the questions wrongly. NOT He answered wrongly the questions.

If the object is a long phrase we usually put the adverb before the verb (but not when the adverb is hard, fast, well or badly):

The teacher carefully explained the correct answers to the question.
The centre forward skillfully headed the ball into the net.

When a sentence consists of verb + preposition + object, we can put the preposition before the preposition or after the object.

She listened to me carefully. She listened carefully to me.
Dan went over the exercise quickly. Dan went quickly over the exercise.

When we use a passive form, the adverb goes before the past participle.

He was badly injured in the car crash.
The flight was seriously delayed by the bad weather.

When life is a dream

When life is a dream

Most of us sleep a well at night and manage to stay awake at school or at work. But what would life be like if you fell asleep while talking to someone or walking down the street? That is what happens to sufferers of narcolepsy. Narcoleptics b go to sleep, often at inappropriate times and places. These attacks can occur c in a single day, and the sleepiness can last for long periods.

Normally, when a person falls asleep, the brain waves d deep become slower and less regular. After about 90 minutes the brain starts working e gradual again, although the person is sleeping f active. This sleep state, called rapid eye movement (REM), is when dreaming occurs. In narcolepsy, the brain goes g direct into REM sleep.

Apart from the problem of sleepiness, there are other problems. Sometimes when they fall asleep or wake up, sufferers are h temporary unable to talk or move. Unfortunately, there is no cure for narcolepsy although medicine can help to reduce the effects. Although narcoleptics can fall asleep in any place and while doing any activity, they can lead productive lives. They i usual sleep for 15 minutes and then wake up. They need to plan their lives j careful so they are able to take naps.

EXTENSION ACTIVITY

Complete these sentences.

- a We ....................... very carefully.
- b My parents ....................... gradually.
- c I ....................... slowly.
- d We ....................... hard.
- e The teacher ....................... nicely.
comparatives and superlatives (1)

FORM

one-syllable adjectives

To form the comparative add -er and to form the superlative add -est to adjectives such as cheap, clean, dark, light, small, slow and tall.

tall  taller  the tallest

Add -er or -est to adjectives ending in -e: large, late, strange, nice, safe.

safe  safer  the safest

Double the final consonant and add -er or -est to adjectives ending in one vowel and one consonant.

hot, fat, sad, big, wet.

hot  hotter  the hottest regular adjectives with two syllables and more

Change -y to -i and add -er or -est to adjectives ending in -y: easy, lazy, noisy, happy, funny, sexy, silly.

easy  easier  the easiest

NOTE you will often see more or most with these adjectives as an alternative eg more funny - the most funny, more noisy - the most noisy.

Use more or most in front of most other two-syllable adjectives: tiring, precise, perfect.

tiring  more tiring  the most tiring

You will see either form (more or most in front, or add -er or -est ) used with a limited number of adjectives such as clever, common, cruel, gentle, narrow, pleasant, polite, quiet, simple, stupid and tired.

cleverer  the cleverest more clever  the most clever

However, if in doubt it is safer to use the more / most form.

Use more or most in front of all adjectives with more than two syllables: beautiful, intelligent, comfortable, interesting and expensive.

expensive  more expensive  the most expensive irregular adjectives

good  better  the best

gooder  the bestest

bad  worse  the worst far  further / farther  the furthest / farthest

USE

We use comparatives and superlatives to show how people or things are different in some way. We normally use comparatives to compare two things. Comparatives show more of a quality or characteristic. We use than in sentences where two people or things are compared using a comparative adjective.

I am faster than John.  She is taller than me.

Berlin is larger than Hamburg.  It's hotter today than yesterday.

We use superlatives to talk about a person or thing who has more of a particular quality than all others of their type. We always use the definite article the before superlative forms and we don't use than.

I am the most intelligent student in the class.  NOT I am the more intelligent student...

Who is the richest person in the world?  The USA is the most powerful country in the world.

Rio de Janeiro is one of the most beautiful cities in the world.  He's the worst teacher I know.

k. Angel Falls (Salto Angel) in Canaima National Park, Venezuela is the greatest waterfall in the world at 3,212 feet (979 metres).
5 Complete the text with the comparative form of the adjectives below.

Is life better now than it was in the past? Older people look back to when they were a younger and complain that young people today don’t realise how difficult things were then. Of course in many ways life is b stressful now. We live in a world which is cleaner and safer. It is generally c easier as well, and because of improvements in medical care, both men and women can expect to live d longer lives. Our day-to-day existence is more comfortable, but are we e happier? The rhythm of life is faster, and f more stressful. People are always in a hurry. In the end it is hard to say if things were better or g more stressful before. As the saying goes ‘the grass is always h greener on the other side of the fence’.

6 Complete the text with the adjectives in brackets() in comparative or superlative form.

OS battles

Windows, Linux and Unix are different computer operating systems (OS). You need an operating system to run any computer – both PCs at home or in the office, and the big network servers that connect other computers. Windows is the a (popular) most popular system for PCs in the world. There are also versions of Windows for network servers, but in this market, Unix-based systems are b (common) more common than Microsoft systems. A newcomer to the battle is Linux.

If we compare Windows and Unix as systems for network servers, they have different strengths and weaknesses, but many experts say that Unix is a c (good) better system than Windows. It is d (small) smaller and e (efficient) more efficient than Windows. In addition, it is f (stable) more stable, while Windows has a reputation for ‘crashing’. Linux is based on Unix but it is g (easy) easier to use.

The main difference between Linux and the other two systems is that it is ‘open source’. This means it is h (cheap) cheaper, but for most people Linux systems are still i (difficult) more difficult to use than Windows.

Another advantage of Windows for PC users is that it has the j (big) larger offer of programs and applications. The range of software for Linux is k (wide) wider than before, but there is still a problem for people who want to play games, for example.

Time, money, and happiness

What makes us feel good? A recent study by Richard Layard of the London School of Economics compares the amount of time people use for different daily tasks, and the ‘happiness’ that each of these tasks gives them. The activities that make us feel a include socializing, relaxing, sex, doing sport and praying. We only spend around 23% of our time doing these things. The b activities include travelling to work, working, returning home from work, looking after children and doing the housework. We spend 42% of our time doing these things. In other words, we spend most of our time on c things.

Although society encourages us to work hard and to earn as much as we can, being rich doesn’t seem to make most people d

People complain about the stress of modern life, but we actually work less and have more holidays than in the past.

In practical terms, life is e for us

enough, too

We use too, enough and not enough with adjectives, adverbs and nouns.
- Too means ‘more than is necessary or desirable’.
- Enough means ‘as much as is necessary’.
- Not enough means ‘less than is necessary’.

You have to be 18 to vote. You’re 16, so you’re too young / not old enough.
It was his eighteenth birthday last May so now he’s old enough to vote.

The human body is like a machine. It needs fuel to work normally, to grow and to repair body tissues, but many people in the west consume too much food and therefore too many calories. Excess food and energy is stored as fat in the body. Most of us don't eat enough fibre and starchy carbohydrates, and possibly vitamins and minerals, which are all essential for good health.

The diet in most western countries is too high in fat, particularly saturated fat. This increases the risk of heart disease. We also tend to eat too much salt (sodium) and sugar. Eating too much sugary foods is a major cause of tooth decay, obesity and diabetes.

The World Health Organisation (WHO) recommends eating at least five portions of fruit and vegetables every day. This is an easy way to consume enough vitamins and minerals, as well as fibre.

B No, I've worked after now. before A Oh yes, when was that?
B Last year. I worked in a summer camp since the holidays.
A Right, well, first we'll talk about your background. Until that, you can ask any questions you have.
B Okay.
A Tell me a bit about school.
B I've been at the City Institute during five years. Before that I went to a school in the town where we lived until I was twelve.
A Why did you move?
B My father had to change jobs after his company closed down.
A I see. What subjects do you like?
B From we started the International Baccalaureate I've preferred the science subjects.
A That's good. What time can you start work in the afternoon?
B I have school from eight to two and afterwards I have lunch. I can't really start before three-thirty.
A That's okay. And how many hours do you want to work?
B I could stay during about three hours. I need some time for homework.
A Yes, of course. Do you mean since Monday to Friday?
B I don't think I can work every day.
A Yes, that's what I thought. Until you're studying, how about Wednesday and Friday afternoons, and Saturday mornings?
B That sounds good.
A Right, now, do you have any questions about the job?

The Berlin Wall

If you visit Berlin today you will find a rich, busy European capital full of tourists. It is hard to believe that for 28 years the city was divided by a 3.5 metre high wall.

When World War 2 ended, Berlin was divided into different areas, each under the control of a different Ally – American, British and French on one side, and Russian on the other. This was not a good idea and after months of arguments, on 24 June 1948 Russia closed all roads into West Berlin. The Americans and British did not want another war, so for 28 years they sent food and medicines into the city by air. The crisis continued when the Russians opened the road and rail links again.

The city was still divided, but people could still cross from one area to the other. On that day, without warning, the East German security forces closed most of the crossing points to West Berlin with barbed wire. This soon became a concrete wall, over 150 km long, completely surrounding West Berlin. The wall remained until 9 November 1989.

Over 200 people were killed while they tried to pass over or dig under the wall. Berlin has been the capital of a re-unified Germany, although the German parliament and government did not move there from Bonn. The wall has nearly disappeared and now only small parts remain as a reminder of the city’s history.
In, at and on are prepositions. They locate people, objects and events in time and space.

Time

We use at before exact times, special holiday periods, night and the weekend.
The meeting is at five o’clock.
I like it when it snows at Christmas.
I like to relax at the weekend. (In American English you can say on the weekend.)
He’s not doing anything at the moment.

We use on before days, dates, and when we refer to part of a particular part of the day.
I’ll see you on Monday.
My birthday is on 4 May.
I have Spanish lessons on Tuesday mornings / afternoons / evenings.

We use in before months, years, seasons and longer periods of time.
His birthday is in May.
Berlin is a cold place in winter.
The Normans invaded Britain in 1066.
Newton was born in the 17th century.

We can also use in to say
- how soon something will happen.
  I’ll see you in a week.
The match will end in five minutes.
- how long something takes to happen.
  He can run 100 metres in under 10 seconds.

No preposition is required before next, last, this, one, any, each, every, some and all.
Last month we had a school trip.
I’ll see you next Friday.
There’s no class this week.

Place

We use at to refer to a position as a point.
He is standing at the bus stop.
There’s someone at the door.

Note that we do not use the article the after at with the nouns home, school, work, university and college.

We use on to refer to a position in relation to a surface or a line.
I left my book on the table. (surface)
The school is on a very busy road. (line)

We also say on a list, on an agenda, on a page and on a train / tram / bus / plane.

We use in to refer to a position in relation to a three dimensional space or when something is surrounded on all sides eg a country, a town, a room, a field, a forest, or any place with boundaries.
I left my book in the dining room.
They met each other in Italy.

Note that we do not use the article the after in with the expressions: in bed, in hospital, in prison and in church.

Other expressions where in is used are in a picture / book / photograph / collection / circle, in Spanish etc, in alphabetical order and in the sky.

The preposition we use can depend on the context.
- We can be in or at a building: in means inside only, at can mean inside or outside.
  I’ll meet you in the cinema. (= inside the cinema.)
  I’ll meet you at the cinema. (= inside or on the street outside.)

- Sometimes we use at with an area when we mean ‘at this point on a journey’. Compare:
  We live in Birmingham.
  I had to change trains at Birmingham.
  (a point on a journey.)

- We use in the sea / river / lake / swimming pool to mean actually in the water. At the sea / river etc means ‘next to’ or ‘near’ it.
  We had a swim in the river.
  We had a picnic at the river.

- Note that with addresses we say:
  He lives at 14 Clapham Road.
  He lives in Clapham Road.
  He lives on the third floor.
1. All the prepositions on, in and at have been removed from the sentences. Add the missing preposition to each sentence.

   a) I've got a computer /my bedroom.
   b) There were a lot of people the train yesterday.
   c) The Nile is the longest river the world.
   d) What do you usually do the weekends?
   e) This calculator has your name it.
   f) We usually visit my grandparents Christmas.
   g) Where were you Christmas day?
   h) His photo was the newspaper yesterday.
   i) We often go skiing the winter.
   j) The head's office is the end of the passage.
   k) Hamburg is the north of Germany.
   l) Go up the street and turn left the traffic lights.
   m) Why is my name the bottom of the list?

2. Complete the gaps in the text with in, on or at.

Tropical storms

Tropical storms develop over oceans a in the summer. b in different parts of the world they are called cyclones, hurricanes, typhoons and willy-willies. Tropical storms are particularly dangerous if they reach land because of the heavy rain, high winds and rises in sea level. Katrina became the fourth hurricane of the season c 25 August 2005. It reached the land later that day d 18.30, between Hallandale Beach and Aventura, towns e on the coast of Florida.

Katrina went out to sea and came back to land again f 06.10 g 29 August with winds of 235 km/h. It went north at a speed of 20 km/h, and many seaside communities were damaged by the strong winds. The storm was so large, it created a rise in sea level which affected the entire Mississippi Gulf Coast. The 10 metre rise which was recorded h in Biloxi, Mississippi is the highest ever seen i in America.

This rise in sea level and waves made a gap j in the flood defences which protect New Orleans (built k below ground below sea level) and most of the city was flooded. As a result, Hurricane Katrina will be remembered as the most destructive natural disaster l in the history of the United States. 1,302 people died and damage cost about $130 billion.
movement

We use verbs with prepositions to talk about movement in relation to: points (to, from), three-dimensional spaces (in / into and out of), surfaces (on / onto and off), and directions (towards, away from, along, past, up and down).

We went to the beach on Saturday.
I need to go to the post office.

Jacques comes from France.
Jane walked home from school.

She walked towards me and then stopped.

Sam walked into the classroom.
Nora travels into the city by train.

The prices are going down.
My granny fell down the stairs.

Go around the corner.
We walked around the city centre.

Go under the railway bridge.
Never walk under a ladder.

We drove past a church.
She just walked past me.

It’s faster to go to the centre on foot. It’s faster to walk to the centre.
Why don’t you come here by bike? I Why don’t you cycle here?
We went to the airport by taxi. I We took a taxi to the airport.

talking about moving from place to place

We can talk about how we move from place to place in two basic ways:
• we can use a phrase: on foot, by car, etc.
• we can use a ‘verb of movement’: drive, walk, run, fly, cycle, or, if you are talking about public transport, an expression with take: take a bus / train / plane / taxi, etc.

3 Complete the text with the prepositions in the box.

out of on down up to on out of on to off into

My journey to school takes 45 minutes. That's an hour and a half each day there and back. At six thirty I walk out of the house, get off my bike and cycle to the station. I get on my bike and walk up to the station with it. I get on the train with my bike, sit down and try to sleep. Sometimes you have to stand, because there are no seats. When the train gets to the city I get off, walk out of the station and get on my bike again. I get to school at eight or just after.
4 In eight of the sentences the preposition of movement is wrong. Put a tick if the sentence is correct. If it is wrong, cross out the preposition and write the correct one.

a David has gone towards the shops to buy some bread. to b She walked into the room and said hello. **✓

c The dog jumped onto the river.

d The book fell over the floor.

e The plane landed on the runway.

f We walked to the mountain for an hour, but turned north before we reached it.

g Joe got out from his car and locked it.

h He fell of the stage because he was drunk.

i We carried the box down the street to the rubbish dump.

j I cycled past your house but you weren't there.

k We couldn't find the shop and walked past the centre for hours looking for it.

l The cat jumped off the table and ate my steak.

5 Read the text about two different types of force. Then underline the correct preposition.

Circular movement – centripetal or centrifugal force?

Car accidents often happen when a car is travelling a around / off a corner too fast. The car can go b from / off the road and crash c away / into something. People usually think this is the result of centrifugal force, but is it?

According to Newton's first law of motion, a moving object will travel d towards / along a straight path unless an outside force acts on it. So, to move in a circle, an object needs a constant force pushing it e towards / along the centre. This is centripetal (or 'centre-seeking') force.

If you swing a ball on the end of a string above your head, you can feel the string pulling f up / away from you. This is the centrifugal force. However, the force which the string applies to the ball is centripetal. If the string breaks, the ball will fly g off / past. Without a centripetal force to pull the ball h into / out of the centre of the circle, it continues in a straight line.

In a car going i along / around a bend, the centripetal force is the sideways friction between the tyres and the road surface. If the car goes too fast, it goes j off / onto the road because the friction is not strong enough to provide the necessary centripetal force to keep it on the road.
The water cycle

1 Rain Clouds become too full of water and it rains. The rain falls on to mountains, hills, fields and towns.

2 Surface runoff A large part of the rain that falls runs on the surface of the ground and collects on the slopes of hills and mountains to form rivers. Rivers flow on to lakes and then eventually into the sea.

3 Groundwater Some of the rain soaks into the ground. It filters through the soil until it is stopped by rock. It cannot go through the rock and collects underground. We can pump this groundwater up to the surface by boreholes.

4 Transpiration Some of the water that soaks in the ground is absorbed by plants through their roots. Most of this water passes through the plant into the atmosphere. This water also helps to form clouds. This process is called transpiration.

5 Freezing In cold parts of the world and in mountainous areas, the water that falls on to the ground as rain or snow freezes to form ice. This ice may later melt to provide surface runoff, or may stay as ice.

6 Evaporation The sun heats water that has flowed on to rivers, lakes and the sea. The heat makes the water evaporate and the water vapour rises into the sky. The vapour forms clouds that eventually produce rain, and the cycle begins again.

EXTENSION ACTIVITY

1 Translate these sentences into your own language.
   a We went home by car.
   b I fell off my bike as I went round the corner.
   c Why don’t we take the bus into town?
   d He crawled under the bed to hide.
   e The car went straight into a tree.

2 Write a paragraph describing in detail your last journey.
dependent prepositions (1)

Many verbs, nouns and adjectives are used with particular prepositions.

verb: I am applying for a holiday job at the zoo.
adjective: Valentino is interested in motorcycle racing.
noun: There has been an increase in the temperature.

Words with a similar or opposite meaning often take the same preposition.
care / worry about someone apply / ask / send for information depend / rely on someone

There are no really useful rules to help you. In the tables below there are some common dependent preposition combinations which you need to learn. (SO = somebody, ST = something).

phrasal verbs

A phrasal verb is a verb plus a particle (a preposition or an adverb). It is usually difficult to guess the meaning of the phrasal verb from the words themselves. For example:

Can you hold on? = Can you wait a moment?
Okay, carry on with the exercise. = Okay, continue with the exercise.
I ran into Sam at the cinema. = I met Sam unexpectedly at the cinema.

Here is a list of some common phrasal verbs.

In science red, green and blue are primary colours because they cannot be made from other colours / light. (The primary colours an artist uses are not the same – they are red, yellow and blue.) When they are mixed, the combination / the three colours is white light.

If you look closely at the screen / a colour TV you will see many lines / tiny dots. They are divided into sets – one red, one green and one blue. The amount / red, blue and green light emitted by each dot is controlled separately by three beams / electrons. These beams scan across the screen, activating each set / dots many times per second. This gives the effect / a continuous picture. All the colours that we see on the screen are obtained by varying the intensity / red, blue and green in each group / dots.

Ex 7

Tsunami is Japanese for 'harbour wave'. It is a powerful ocean wave usually caused by an earthquake under the sea. The movement of the ocean floor displaces the water above it by several metres. The wave which this produces is different from a normal wave. A tsunami can have a wavelength of over 100 km and can travel long distances across the ocean at more than 700 km/hr. As it approaches the coast, the wave slows down and increases in height. Normal waves hit a beach and retreat very quickly. A tsunami is more like an extreme form of tide which rises and surges rapidly over the land with millions of tons of water. The water keeps coming for several minutes.
speed, height and power of a tsunami make it incredibly destructive. It can cause severe damage and many deaths in low-lying coastal areas.

On 26 December 2004 a huge tsunami killed over 200,000 people in countries surrounding the Indian Ocean. It was one of the worst natural disasters in recorded history.
